482 NEW INFLUENZA CASES IN STATE

WIFE PUNCHED HIM, SAYS FREEMAN

USED 'PULL' IN DEALS, CHARGES DAWSON

Former Purchasing Agent Makes Accusations at Finance Commission Inquiry

The charge that political influence had considerable "pull" in awarding the city's contracts for 1918 was made today by Thomas J. Dawson, former superintendent of supplies, testifying at the oil hearing of the City Finance Commision. Most of the contracts for oil in that year went to J. J. Galvin, Dawson said.

"Did Galvin have any particular pull?" Dawson's attorney asked.

"Yes," Martin Lomasney.

"How did you know that?"

"I was given to understand that by Galvin himself, and I was told that a member of the House of Representatives accused me of keeping him from 'getting his dough.'"

Q.—Who was that representative?

A.—John I. Fitzgerald.

Dawson admitted that he had never discussed the matter with Fitzgerald.

Dawson also charged that the oil investigation now in progress was instigated by the Standard Oil Company with the object of "getting" him.

He told of the city advertising for bids on one oil contract and a visit to him by a local representative of the Standard Oil, a man named Fay, to discuss the contract about to be let.

TO LOWEST BIDDER."

"I told him that the time for passing money on oil contracts was over," Dawson declared, "and that the contract we then had in mind would go to the lowest bidder."

"The Standard Oil Company had been asked to bid. But after my conversation with Mr. Fay they lowered their estimate for the city contract 1 cent a gallon."

"It is a known fact," the former superintendent declared, "that some one collects on all oil distributed in Boston. I mean oil generally, not just that bought by the city government."

These portions of Dawson's testimony were ordered stricken from the record by the commision. He was

INCREASE IN GRIP CASES IN BOSTON

Despite Gain, Officials Are Encouraged by Comparative Reduction in Deaths

During the twenty-four hours ending at noon today 482 new cases of influenza were reported to the State Department of Health, 184 of which were in Boston.

These figures show an increase. For the forty-eight hours preceding the figures were: Three hundred and three new cases, of which 137 were in Boston.

Health officials are hopeful, because of the low death rate.

Only two deaths have occurred in twenty-four hours, as against eleven a year ago, when the epidemic was on the wane.

Seventeen deaths from pneumonia were reported today (eleven bronchial, six lobar pneumonia), and twelve new cases.

Various relief and medical forces mobilized by Health Commissioner William C. Woodward are subject to emergency call, and relief stations have been selected in different parts of the city. The District Nursing Association and the Red Cross are preparing for calls, and if necessary canteens will be opened to feed shut-ins who are nursing the sick.

ACCUSE MOTHER OF BLOCKING POLICEMAN

Mrs. Sadie Hannon of Marion street, East Boston, was arraigned in East Boston court today charged with interfering with a police officer while executing his duty. Her case was continued until Friday. It is alleged that she refused admission to her home to Patrolman Henry Hernon, searching for Mrs. Hannon's daughter, Irene Cunningham, seventeen, who had escaped from Lancaster.

D. S. M. IS AWARDED ELIOT WADSWORTH

Eliot Wadsworth, chairman of the executive committee of the Harvard Endowment Fund and vice-chairman of the Red Cross, has been awarded a D. S. M. by President Wilson. Mr. Wadsworth sails Friday as delegate to the congress of Red Cross Societies at Geneva.

WALTHAM CHAMBER FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

John E. Cobb was elected president of the Waltham Chamber of Commerce at a dinner in the Hotel Middlesex in that city. The gathering went on record, by a vote of thirty-seven, in favor of daylight saving.

Admiral Sims a "Political Hero," Says James B. Connolly

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY,

Boston's noted writer of sea tales, who spent eight months with the American naval forces abroad during the Great War and whose comments on Admiral Sims are based on personal observation.

JAMES B. CONNOLLY.

It is in the days of peace that the politician in the navy is best developed. There have been politicians enough in our navy in times of war; oh, yes, but in a war of any length the politician is more likely to drop out, and the fighting man to keep going.

Unless under the constant threat of a country somewhere near its own size the warring power of a country will deteriorate. Men, or bodies of men who do not train regularly, lose their fighting power. It does not matter whether they are nations, navies, prize fighters or croquet champions; they all go back if they do not keep in condition.

EDITOR GIVEN PORTFOLIO IN CABINET

Meredith of Iowa to Be Secretary of Agriculture; Houston Heads Treasury

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 27. — President Wilson will send to the Senate the nomination of Secretary of Agriculture David Franklin Houston to be Secretary of the Treasury, it was announced at the White House today. Edward T. Meredith of Iowa will be nominated as Secretary of Agriculture.

The nomination of Secretary Houston is the first transfer made in the Cabinet since the administration of President Wilson.

Meredith, who succeeds Secretary Houston as head of the Department of Agriculture, is the editor of "Successful Farming." He is now in Florida, but a telegram was received from him today accepting the post.

Meredith has been prominent in Iowa Democratic politics for some years. At one time he ran for Governor of Iowa. Meredith is president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America.

ACCIDENT AT READVILLE BLOCKS TRAIN SERVICE

The derailment of three cars of an extra freight train early today on the middle siding at Readville caused a tieup on the New Haven road and a delay to almost every train bringing commuters into Boston. The wreck occurred shortly before 6 o'clock, and it was several hours before conditions on the road were normal. The accident caused a delay in the several local trains which are made up at Readville and resulted in a congestion at the South Station. Some of the locals were stopped near the Fort Point channel.

WILSON MAY URGE QUICK ACTION ON FOOD RELIEF

Washington, Jan. 27.—President Wilson may ask Congress to take quick action on the proposal for an appropriation for $150,000,000 for food relief for Europe. The President is in favor of such an appropriation and is contemplating writing a letter to the chairmen of the House Ways and Means Committee urging immediate favorable action.

Scores Seek Chance to Witness Hornby's Electrocution

By International News Service.

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Not since Charles Becker, former New York police lieutenant, was electrocuted has there been such high public interest in an execution as in that of Gordon Fawcett Hamby, the bank robber, under sentence to die in Sing Sing on Thursday.

More than 100 applications to witness the execution have been received by the warden. The condemned man coolly spends his time smoking cigarettes. He insists he "wants to go on time" and forbids his counsel seeking a pardon from Governor Smith.

EAST BOSTON MOVIE HOUSE FIRE SWEPT

The Central Square Theatre on Bennington street, East Boston, the largest moving picture house in the district, was seriously damaged by fire which started early today in a waste paper room in the basement.

The firemen were handicapped by illuminating gas, which filled the building when a meter was burned off, and the services of the rescue squad from Fort Hill square with gas masks were necessary to shut it off.

The blaze, which was particularly stubborn, was fought for two hours, and during that time car service on Bennington street from Orient Heights into the Tunnel, was suspended.

John Flynn, stage manager, entering the building to care for the boilers, noticed the intense heat and found the storeroom, containing about thirty-eight bales of paper, was ablaze. Chief Fitzgerald O'Laior ordered a bell alarm, which summoned all the apparatus in the district.

R. I. LEGISLATORS GREET SERGT. ALVIN C. YORKE

ACCUSES SIMS OF LIBELLING U. S. ARMY

Depreciated Work of the Navy Also, Congressman Byrnes Declares in House

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Admiral Sims told Congressmen on October 30, 1918, that an armistice would have to be granted the Germans because of the failure of General Pershing to break through the German ranks, due to the disastrous breakdown in transportation behind the American lines, Representative Byrnes of South Carolina declared in the House this afternoon. Representative Byrnes charged Admiral Sims with having libelled the army and depreciated the work of the navy.

By a vote of 25 to 20, the Senate today refused to consider the Hale resolution providing for counsel to aid in the investigation of the charges made by Admiral Sims relative to the conduct of the navy during the war.

This was the fourth time that Senator Hale, Republican, of Maine, chairman of the sub-committee, had endeavored to have the resolution passed.

IME KAPLAN RELEASED FROM DEER ISLAND

Ime Kaplan, the radical labor leader, who conducted the last strike of textile workers in Lawrence, was released from Deer Island today under $5,000 bail. Kaplan was taken in raids January 2, when Department of Justice and Immigration Service officials took over 400 alleged "Reds" into custody. Kaplan went to his home in Lawrence.

Sammarco Broke Down When Pucchia and Rotondo Were Accused of Clancey Murder

District-Attorney Pelletier today called a special session of the Grand Jury for Thursday, to take up the shooting of Patrolman William G. Clancey, to which Joseph Sammarco has confessed.

Sammarco was arraigned in the Municipal Court today on the charge of murder, pleaded not guilty, and was held without bail under a continuance to February 5.

Belief that two other men were being sent to jail for the fatal shooting led Sammarco, a naval veteran of the War in which Clancey distinguished himself, to confess to the crime, according to the police.

Sammarco, born in Boston, December 30, 1897, enlisted in the navy April 16, 1917. He was aboard the freighter Tyler when she was torpedoed off Genoa, and was rescued. He was on the Antilles when she was sent to

Ask Wilson to Have U. S. Keep Railroads 2 Years Longer

By International News Service

Washington, Jan. 27.—Retention of the railroads in government ownership two years longer was requested by a delegation representing a triple alliance of farmers' organizations, the American Federation of Labor, and railway Brotherhoods in a visit today to the White House.

The delegation presented a letter to Secretary Tumulty to be laid before President Wilson.

NEWBERRY, IN COURT, FACES FRAUD CHARGE

Senator and 134 Others Go On Trial and Big Fight Is Promised

By International News Service.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 27.—With a bitter fight promised on every move by either side, U. S. Senator Truman H. Newberry and 134 other defendants went on trial here today before Judge Sessions, charged with perpetrating frauds during the senatorial elections of 1918. The defendants were a picturesque lot—hailing from all over the State, from the congested wards of Detroit to the Indian districts of the north. Among them were judges, bankers, sheriffs, county chairmen—all types of politicians from the cities to the north woods. There was one minister in the lot. Senator Newberry arrived from Washington accompanied by his brother, John S. Newberry, Fred P. Smith and Hannibal Hopkins.

The first big move of the defence promised to be on the court's method of selecting jurors. A questionnaire was sent out to those drawn for jury service, and the replies resulted in many eliminations.

Attorney Littleton will maintain that the names were drawn by county clerks instead of through the regular channels. He will contend that the system was at fault because it resulted in the elimination of prospects before they reported to court.

'GAVE HIM A BLACK EYE'

Woman Who Seeks Divorce Jumped on Hat and Pushed Him Over Chair, Freeman Charges

How his wife abused him, once striking him in the eye so that it was black for a week, was described in the divorce court today by Ernest B. Freeman, manager of the Sturtevant Blower Works, contesting the suit of his wife, Mrs. Margaret Reed Freeman, for divorce.

On other occasions, he asserted, she knocked him over a hall chair, and jumped on the silk hat he was about to wear to a Chamber of Commerce dinner. He declared that he never struck his wife.

Mrs. Freeman was extremely jealous, said Freeman, and refused to go to a reception given by Governor and Mrs. Foss because there was dancing afterwards and she thought he wanted to put his arms around the girls there. Mrs. Freeman's suit alleges cruelty.

Freeman's appearance as a witness occasioned some surprise, as it had

NURSE BLAMED FOR WOMAN PATIENT'S DEATH

Dedham, Jan. 27.—Margaret Coumans, a nurse at the Wiswell Nervine Hospital, Wellesley, was held responsible for the death by scalding of Mrs. Mary C. Lotz, a patient in the report of the inquest filed today. Judge Plympton said that the woman's death on November 11 was due to the "unlawful negligence of said Margaret Coumans." Mrs Lotz was found in a bathtub in the institution with 95 per cent. of her body scalded.

not been expected he would be called so soon.

Mrs. Freeman betrayed signs of excitement as Freeman's name was called, and both she and her sister, Mrs. Florence Reed Morton of Worcester, produced notebooks and pencils and began to take down testimony.

DENIES WIFE'S CHARGES.

Freeman denied his wife's statements that he had objected to her shakings hands with men and to her physician alone. He also refuted her testimony that she had not listened at keyholes, telling of an occasion when she had called him from a remote closet talk with an old college friend named Mitchell.

Testifying as to the silk hat incident, which occurred in 1912, Freeman said that his wife was first morose and then jealous when she learned that women were to be in the galleries at the banquet.

"I remember it very distinctly," Mr. Freeman testified. "I was at that time a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Taft was coming here as our guest. I never heard Taft speak and was very anxious to. When I went home I noticed Mrs. Freeman very sullen. She said nothing until I got into my evening clothes, and put my hat on. As I was going out the hull door she pushed me over a chair, jumped on my hat and put her foot through it.

Q—What kind of a hat was that?

A—It was a tall hat, a silk hat.

There was so much trouble and violence that I did not go to the banquet.

Q—Did you strike her? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Or abuse her? A.—No, sir.

Q—What was Mrs. Freeman's manner at dinner after the hat incident? A.—She calmed down as she usually did on such occasions. She explained to her mother that it was all her fault, that she supposed she was jealous, and that it worried her when she thought that I was going to the banquet where there would be ladies in the galleries.

CLASH BETWEEN COUNSEL.

Soon after Mr. Freeman took the stand, a legal battle developed between Attorneys Hunt and Hall as to the admission of a little pink card, which the respondent alleged to be in Mrs. Freeman's handwriting. The card was handed to Mr. Freeman by Attorney Hunt.

Q—Do you recognize that handwriting? A.—I do.

Q—Whose handwriting is it? A.—Mrs. Freeman's.

Mr. Hall, counsel for Mrs. Freeman, contended that only the handwriting alleged to be Mrs. Freeman's and the printed matter on the card, were admissible. Judge Fosdick ruled that such of the card as was in the handwriting, and that which was printed, would be admitted.

"It is perfectly clear that matter was added after the card left her hands, such as dates and postmarks," said Attorney Hall.

"Your honor, I question whether that card was ever in the postoffice and so I object to it," he added.

Attorney Hunt called the attention of the court to the postmark. The court said: "I will now rule that so much of the card marked exhibit 1 as has been testified to by this witness as in Mrs. Freeman's handwriting and such matter as is in type be admitted."

Q—Where were you employed at the time of your marriage?

Q—What were you doing at that time? A.—I was head of a department.

FROM $25 TO $25,000.

Q—What was your salary? A.—Twenty-five dollars a week.

Mr. Freeman's salary is now said to be $25,000 a year as first vice-president and treasurer in charge of four of the five branches of the Sturtevant Works.

Mr. Freeman testified that his position with the Sturtevant corporation is next to that of former president Eugene N. Foss, its president.

Q—What is the capital stock of the Sturtevant corporation?

Witness declared the capital stock to be $2,750,000 and said that 3,000 people were employed in the Hyde Park branch alone.

Q—Mr. Freman, where were you married? A.—In Mrs. Freeman's mother's home in Worcester.

Q—How old were you and Mrs. Freeman at the time? A.—I was 25 and she was 19.

Q—Had you any money when you were married? A.—Well, I had saved two or three hundred dollars.

Q—Did Mrs. Freeman's mother have a maid? A.—No. Mrs. Freeman's mother did a great deal herself.

Q—What was the condition of your wife's health at the time you were married? A.—She had the usual health and strength.

Mr. Freeman said that after their wedding he and Mrs. Freeman went to New York on their honeymoon, and later he was appointed to work for the Sturtevant plant. That was in January, 1903. Then following March the couple went to Savannah, Ga. He then told of returning to Philadelphia and taking up housekeeping with his wife.

REFUTES WIFE'S DENIAL.

After traveling through the East for the Sturtevant company, and taking Mrs. Freeman on many of these trips, they settled down to housekeeping in Dedham. At this time Freeman received a salary of $25 a week. He paid $28 a month house rent, kept two servants, and he himself took care of the furnace. While they were living here a man named Mitchell, a college chum at Worcester Tech, visited them at Dedham.

Freeman said: "I went to Mitchell's room about 11 o'clock that night and we talked over old times. There was a knock at the door, and Mrs. Freeman called on me to leave Mitchell and come with her. After a few minutes I went to our room and she was very angry and bitter. I explained to her, and she gradually softened and finally kissed me before we went to sleep."

During Mrs. Freeman's cross-examination at the hands of Attorney Hunt, she denied absolutely that she had listened at the door, heard two men talking of girls and called her husband out.

Freeman denied that he had suggested to his wife that she should not see her physician alone, that she should show all her letters to her husband, or that she should not shake hands with any man.

Later, with a salary of $7,500 a year, Freeman testified, the family moved to Hyde Park, living at No. 16 Albion street. This house, too, was rented. There were three servants, and Freeman took care of the furnace himself. Two children were born here, Barbara and Reed.

TELLS OF MENTAL SCIENCE.

How his wife's conversion to mental science as a means of cure for her three-months-old infant, then dying, caused him to leave the train while on the way to Buffalo and return home, was told by Mr. Freeman in June, 1918. Mr. Freeman said, theis baby, three and a half months old, was ill with diabetes. He testified he had called various specialists, but while these were satisfactory, he learned of correspondence between Mrs. Freeman and her sister, Mrs. Morton, on the question of mental science.

Mr. Freeman said he intercepted a letter from his wife to her sister, and read it, while he was on his way from Dedham to Boston, where he expected to take a train for Buffalo. In the letter, he said, was mental science and the intention of applying it to the baby. "I went as far as Framingham on the train and suddenly I left the train and returned home," Freeman said.

CITY'S OIL DEAL SUSPECTED BY DAWSON

frequently interrupted by Chairman Flynn to confine himself to facts.

"I would be crucified if I had to rely on facts," Dawson declared.

I have been told that a man named Norton of the City Hall was booked to go on this oil deal," he added later, "but he had too much on them and it was decided that I was to be made the goat."

He testified that he had no evidence that the Scullin had substituted cheaper oil for that ordered by the city when the orders for the additional forty-two cars were being filled.

"Did anyone ever offer you money for the purchase of oil from Mr. Scullin?" he was asked A.—"No."

Q—"Was there ever any suggestion of it?" A.—"No."

DIFFERENCES DEDUCTED.

In the examination of Dawson by Mr Scullin's attorney, the former superintendent said that Scullin had delivered 1,761 gallons more than the contract called for. This, he said, was the system of paying by measurements on the road surface, which was agreed to by Mr. Scullin, Eddie Murphy, of the engineering department, and Mr. Dawson. When a car of oil failed to cover the amount of road they agreed it should, Dawson said, the difference was deducted from the company's bill.

Thomas F. Sullivan, Commissioner of Public Works, testified that he was not acquainted with Mr. Scullin before he began supplying the city with road oil in April of last year. He said that he had nothing to do with awarding the contract except that he and Mr. Dawson had agreed that it should go to the lowest bidder.

The five tank cars of oil, or approximately 40,000 gallons, were ordered in April of 1919, he said, to test its qualities. Although the cities normally uses about 300,000 gallons a year for road purposes he said, it was desired to estimate the cost to the city for the year before awarding a complete contract. Previous experience he said, had shown that it was cheaper to buy the oil in the open market instead of awarding a lump contract.

"SUSPECTED ILLEGALITY."

Dawson denied that herecieved a cent for his part in the alleged irregular transaction but declared that he suspected there was "some little illegality about the business."

He testified that he spoke of this to Commissioner of Public Works Thomas F. Sullivan, when the bids for some forty-two cars of oil were not advertised.

The storm centre of the road oil fight, Dawson took his stand in a fighting mood and showed no disposition to helo on his announced purpose to "tell all he knew."

When his testimony at one point was objected to by Attorney Sullivan, representing Matt P. Scullin, contractor who supplied the oil in controversy, Mr. Dawson became angry and said, "I'll make Mr. Sullivan weigh down more before I am through with this thing."

Mr. Dawson declared he thought he was within the law in ordering forty-two carloads of oil without bids as he did this without contract, and on individual order blanks.

He declared that conversations with various city officials of much experience did nothing to dislodge this conviction from his mind.

SUSPECTED ILLEGALITY.

In this connection he testified that Mr. Scullin once told him that he was in the habit of getting verbal orders for oil direct from Commissioner Sullivan even before he, Dawson, had sent the proper requisitions.

Throughout his testimony, Dawson sought to emphasize his own ignorance that he was committing any substantial breach of law, although admitting that he suspected "some illegality about the thing." Dawson said that the first oil contracted for with Scullin, representing the American Oil Company, was for five carloads. This was to cost 8.45 cents, although one carload of higher grade oil actually cost 9.9 cents. Afterward forty-two carloads, which are under dispute, were shipped after individual requisitions.

Attorney Robert B. Dodge, conducting the hearing for the commission, interrupted to remind the witness that the city specifications had in mind an oil costing 11.75 cents and of a higher grade than that actually used. The witness said that Commissioner Sullivan assured him purchase of such an oil would be a waste of money, as it would be almost a lubricating oil and not fit for road work.

CHEMICAL TESTS.

Dawson said that chemical tests were made of the first five carloads, although Commissioner Sullivan had no faith in tests and thought the only way to judge of road oils was by results.

ADMITS MURDER OF CLANCEY TO SAVE OTHERS

the bottom of Trent, and with eleven others spent twelve days drifting about in a small boat before being rescued. He was discharged from the service December 16, 1918.

According to his attorneys Sammarco has no court record, although he was once in court in an assault and battery case. His lawyers say the case was dismissed.

The only member of his family in court today when his attorney, Thomas J. Grady, waived the reading of the complaint, charging the murder of Clancey, was a sister, Mrs. Theresa Pilchnes of East Boston.

Sammarco was arrested Saturday as a suspicious person. It was not until Philip Puccia and Frank Rotondo, who arrested in connection with the murder, were being taken from their cells in Station 15, Charlestown, that Sammarco showed signs of distress.

He called a police officer and asked where the others were being taken.

"To jail," replied the officer.

"What for?" asked Sammarco.

"For the murder of Clancey."

Sammarco sank to the bench in his cell, and began to weep.

"Why should they go to jail," he cried, "they know nothing about it."

A few minutes later he sprang to his feet, shouting: "Send some officers here and I will tell the truth about the shooting."

Other officers were summoned and Sammarco confessed, saying he had intended to wound Patrolman de France in the leg.

Today the eyes of the young sailor were red with weeping when he appeared in court before Judge Sullivan.

It was a girl who gave the police their first hint that Sammarco knew of the murder. Her story and the revolver found beneath a radiator in the Charlestown dance hall led the police to the young sailor. Special officers B. D. Winn and J. J. Driscoll of East Boston, and Ferrari and Chaisson of the North End followed these clews.

Sammarco's hysteria following his confession caused fears that he might attempt suicide and a double guard was maintained outside his cell.

BULLETINS

BERLIN.—Mathias Erzburger, who was wounded by an assailant yesterday, was resting easily today. The assailant, Oliwig von Hirschfelo, a student, said he had attacked the minister for political reasons.

PARIS.—Rumania has submitted a memorandum declaring that the decisions of the inter-allied Danube commission "are null and void because there was no American representative upon the organization."

PARIS.—The Socialist members of the Chamber of Deputies are said to be preparing to interpellate the government on its attitude toward the Soviet government of Russia.

PARIS.—The International Labor Bureau today decided to communicate decisions of the International Labor Conference only to countries that are represented at the sessions now being held here. This excludes the United States.

'SQUARE DEAL' IS NEW POLICY OF GERMANY

Expects to Fulfill All the Terms of the Treaty of Versailles

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 27.—Germany's first direct diplomatic correspondence with England in five years is an earnest avowal of a new "square deal policy."

Chancellor Bauer seized the first opportunity personally to emphasize to the British representative in Berlin, Lord Kilmarnock, that Germany has no intention of re-establishing her pre-war foreign political activity, it was stated today in authoritative circles.

Herr Bauer was said to have informed Lord Kilmarnock that "Germany expects to fulfill all the terms of the treaty of Versailles."

Official dispatches from Berlin quote the chancellor as saying that the effect upon Germany of the ratification of the treaty is generally good, but he explained that unless the Germans could get supplies, including raw materials, food and clothing, the establishment of a stable regime with a contented people would be seriously retarded.

The chancellor gave official assurances to Great Britain not to feel any anxiety over Germany's desire to get her industries "going full tilt," as the Germans recognize that it is only by increasing production to the maximum that they can pay their reparations.

'Spy,' Minus His Shoes, Discovers British Own Boston

A "self-appointed American spy," who announced that the British owned Boston and that he was tracing a trainload of explosives to be used in mining the harbor, was arrested by the Waltham police today. He was identified as William E. Pattison, thirty-eight, of Lakehill avenue, Arlington. He was hiding behind a clump of bushes and was in his stocking feet so as to make no sound.

Pattison said two Boston newspapers had been purchased by Great Britain, that his secret code had been stolen by a firm which operates a chain of one-arm lunch rooms, that Big Bill Thompson and Bryan was dead and the coffee poisoning of a big Boston tea company. He was taken to the State Insane Hospital at Worcester.

LANDLORDS MAY BE JAILED

The scheming, stingy, selfish, heartless landlord will be dealt a body blow if the bill to fine and imprison Massachusetts landlords who fail to furnish heat of 65 degrees goes through the present session of the Legislature.

The poor, shivering tenant, who complains and then shivers some more in a "balmy" atmosphere of about 50, will have redress, State-enforced, if Coleman Silbert's House Bill 513 is seriously considered by the lawmakers up at the State House. Young Silbert, State Representative from Suffolk County, gave the American the history of his bill.

MAY HALT INFLUENZA.

"Influenza is now reaching epidemic stages in Chicago and New York," said he. "We hope history will not repeat itself in Boston. But it is as well for Boston and Massachusetts to make what preparations they can. One of the best safeguards is to compel hundreds of landlords who have agreed to furnish heat to live up to their agreement."

Silbert, since the filing of his bill, has received many letters and telephones from persons who laud the author and are eager to see the bill pass.

"My landlord instructs the janitor that heat, after 9:30 at night, should be 'minus.'"

"We couldn't get dressed till after 10 this morning," explained another woman who lives in a small apartment on Huntington avenue, at the State House to inquire about the new bill. "In our house we seldom get any heat till half-past 9."

Silbert has already proved the popularity of the demand behind his bill. However, he wishes the landlord to be protected as well as the tenant.

"Accordingly, I have put in my bill the word 'wilfully.' It should be shown before conviction of the landlord, that he withheld heat wilfully. If he instructed his janitor to furnish heat and the man got drunk and didn't, it is hardly fair to penalize the owner.

LANDLORD PROTECTED.

"Again, in the case of old buildings a special amendment was added, where the rent for such falls below $5 a month, and the tenant moved in knowing that the heating apparatus was old, it seems hardly fair to let the landlord for what the antiquity of the building cannot furnish. That case is up to the house people.

"An objection to my bill has been brought on the grounds of paternalism. It has been said that if the tenant freezes he can invoke the law to make the landlord live up to his agreement. He can, but it is an expensive process in equity. Meanwhile his health may suffer as the law delays.

"The public health is the State's concern. Therefore the authorities, and not the private tenant, should compel decent heating."

Silbert's bill follows:

"Whoever, whether owner, lessor, or otherwise, has agreed by lease or contract to furnish heat to the tenant or occupant of any room or apartment used wholly or chiefly as a dwelling place wilfully fails to furnish sufficient heat in accordance with his agreement after written notification by said tenant or occupant, or by anyone in his behalf, shall be punished by a fine of not more than twenty-five dollars for the first offence or second offence during any period of twelve months; for the third or any subsequent offence within any period of twelve months he shall be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days or by both such fine and imprisonment.

"No conviction shall be had under section one where the temperature in the room or apartment was not less than sixty-five degrees Fahrenheit, in the absence of specific provision in writing.

"This act shall not apply in case of apartments or rooms rented at less than the rate of ten dollars per room per month, but shall apply where the rental equals or exceeds forty-five dollars."

Home Liquor Still Explodes; One Dead, 6 Hurt

Fall River, Jan. 27.—The police are investigating the death of Manuel Lima, which followed the explosion of a whiskey still in his home. His wife and five children were severely burned. The man's physician claims that he died of lobar pneumonia.

The cause of the explosion was the clogging up of the worm or coil leading from the tank in which the mash was boiling to the can into which the whiskey was dripping. As the tank was otherwise air tight the explosion naturally ensued.

DUBLIN CASTLE SUSPENDS 'GAG RULE' IN ERIN

Restrictions Are Lifted in Counties of Tipperary and Galway

Dublin, Jan. 27.—A tempering of the policy of Dublin Castle in its administration of Irish affairs is hinted in an official announcement which lifts the restrictions on public meetings, fairs and processions in Counties Tipperary and Galway, effective today.

These restrictions have been in force for the last four months, and have resulted in great commercial loss and led to considerable public irritation.

The proclamation lifting the restrictions warns, however, that they will be reimposed if disorders and offences against the government make it necessary.

Land 2,000 American Rifles on Irish Coast; Police Search in Vain

London, Jan. 27.—Two thousand American rifles have been landed on the coast of County Clare within the last fortnight, the Daily News learns from a correspondent in Ireland. The rifles have been brought ashore in small quantities at secret spots, fully distributed before the government troops learned of their arrival, the correspondent adds, and the authorities are said to be unable to discover trace of the weapons or their exact origin.

HENDERSON'S WARNING ON IRISH QUESTION

Dublin, Jan. 27.—The Irish question is no longer a national problem, but an international one, Arthur Henderson, the labor leader, said in a speech here. He warned his hearers that unless it is solved constitutionally there is no end to the apprehension that an unconstitutional solution would be resorted to which would be disastrous to Britain.

ICE ON WINDOW STOPS OPERATION OF CAR

Passengers on an inbound Huntington avenue car at Copley Square Station at 7:50 a. m. today were given transfers to the subway trains when an ice coating formed on the front window of the motorman's vestibule which rendered sight of traffic ahead almost impossible. Attempt to drive the car would have delayed other cars following closely behind. Transfers were issued and the car was diverted down Berkeley street.

WOBURN MAN HELD FOR DEATH OF BOARDER

Philip Parvia of No. 12 Conn street, Woburn, has been arrested by the Boston police and turned over to authorities say, to the murder of Tony Carchide, who was shot dead at Parvia's home, where he boarded, on January 5.

The Woburn police were notified and took the man to the office of District Attorney Tuttle in Cambridge. He was locked up in the East Cambridge jail.

Boston fire fighters have abandoned their affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. Following a canvass of a referendum vote on the question, it was announced that the firemen had declined to give up their charter as a union known as the Russell Fire Club, a branch of the International Association of Fire Fighters, which is affiliated with A. F. of L. The voting was said to be two to one in favor of that action.

SAY COOK USED CLEAVER TO ANSWER COMPLAINT

George M. Wheeler, fifty-two, a cook on a towboat, who, it is alleged, resented a criticism of his cooking with a meat cleaver, was arraigned in the East Boston Court today on a charge of assault and battery on John Johnson, a member of the crew. The case was continued.

BILL IMPOSES HEAVY PENALTIES ON GAMBLING

Washington, Jan. 27.—A fine of $1,000, or one year's imprisonment is to be made the penalty for gambling, betting or disseminating news through the mails to show the results of gambling under the terms of a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Sterling of South Dakota.

GOMPERS, AT 70, GIVES FORMULA FOR LONG LIFE

"Have No Regular Habits and Work Hard," Is Labor Leader's Maxim

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Messages from labor leaders and public men in all parts of the globe were pouring in upon Samuel Gompers today in honor of his seventieth birthday.

"Have no regular habits and work hard," said the veteran labor chief, when asked for a formula for longevity.

As virile and fiery in spirit as a man half his age, he attributes his vigor to "irregularity in living." Regular habits he says are "deadening."

SMOKES MANY CIGARS.

He has never observed the maxim "early to bed." He eats what he wants and when he wants it. He smokes as many cigars a day as he desires before the eighteenth amendment became a law he frankly enjoyed his "toddy." He seldom takes exercise.

His only "regular habit" is work. His working day is more often fourteen hours than the union eight. He keeps two secretary and several stenographers busy every day.

As he plunged into a mass of correspondence today he smilingly announced that he was "good for about thirty years longer." His father died recently at the age of ninety-five.

NATIVE OF ENGLAND.

He has been in the labor movement for nearly sixty years. Born in England, he entered a cigar factory when a boy of fourteen. He is self-educated.

The past year was an eventful one for the labor chief and in many ways the most trying and important in his career. He crossed the ocean three times, representing American labor at the peace conference.

Gompers has six grandchildren and one great-grandchild. During the past year he suffered the keenest sorrow in his life, the death of his only daughter. He has three sons.

STRIKE IN SYMPATHY WITH LYNN ELECTRICIAN

One hundred and fifty members of the Building Trades Council of Lynn, employed by contractors whose electrical unions have been on strike for the past five weeks, struck today in sympathy. A statement of the Chamber of Commerce that Electrical Workers Union Local 277 had agreed to accept the State Board of Arbitration as a mediator, and that the contractors were willing to submit their differences to arbitration was denied by the executive board of the local.

DRINKS WOOD ALCOHOL AND BENZINE AND LIVES

Burlington, Vt., Jan. 27.—Although he drank nearly a quart of a mixture of wood alcohol, grain alcohol, benzine and other poisons, Joseph Miner was discharged from a hospital as cured, Sunday night he was thought to be dying. He was practically blind. He said he used the deadly mixture, which was labelled poison, with water. He purchased it in Springfield, Mass., where quantities of it are being consumed, he said.

'RED BOOK' OF SOCIALISTS IN EVIDENCE

Hillquit Wins Point in Trial of Suspended New York Assemblymen

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Following a four-day recess New York Assemblymen seemed grimly determined to go through with the trial of five Socialist members for plotting to overthrow the government.

John R. Stanchfield brought up the "red book" which Morris Hillquit had proved last week had been only half translated from Yiddish by the prosecution and which he contended opposed Bolshevism, instead of justifying it.

Stanchfield presented a complete translation of the book. Judge Sutherland as counsel for the State read the translation. "Secret Social Beliefs Before the War and Now" was the book's title.

It was evident the book was full of sensational plans. The writer had gotten down to the head of the revolutionary movement in Russia and had applied his knowledge to the present-day situation in America.

"The power of Congress grows smaller and smaller because Congress is close to the people. The other two branches of the government, the judicial and executive, are far removed from the people and therefore have more power, which constantly grows," the book stated.

Julius Gerber, secretary of the Socialist party in New York, was called. He was questioned concerning the list of membership in the party, and Stedman, for the Socialists, consented to allowing the committee to examine the list, providing it was not published.

A copy of the New York Call of November 6, 1918, was introduced with an advertisement for an "All-star celebration of the second anniversary of the founding of the Russian Soviet republic."

'APACHE TERROR' HOLDS PARIS IN ITS CLUTCHES

Gangs of Youths, Aided by Girls, Are Guilty of Wholesale Depredations

By International News Service.

Paris, Jan. 27.—The "Apache terror" holds Paris in its grip today for the first time since before the war, Newspapers are demanding that the police immediately launch a vigorous campaign against the lawless element as a result of the wholesale attacks on women, stabbings, robberies and holdups that are reported to the prefecture.

Operations were begun by the apaches in the suburbs, but they gradually extended their field until it now reaches the central part of Paris. Practically all are youths of eighteen and twenty, assisted by young girls who are put out as "bait" to lure the victims.

One nineteen-year-old leader was arrested after he had directed a number of raids from the basement of a cafe. The "headquarters" were hastily barricaded and the officers had to break down several doors before they got in. A dozen girls are suspected of working as "lures" for this gang.

VATICAN MAY FREE DOROTHY DEACON

Consider Annulment of Boston Girl's Marriage to Prince Radziwill of Poland

The action of the Vatican tribunal at Rome, in considering the request of the Princess Radziwill for an annulment of her marriage to the Polish prince on the ground that she was forced into the union, recalls the fact in this city that her family history has been most tragic.

The Princess Radziwill was Miss Dorothy Deacon of Boston. Her father was Edward Parker Deacon and her mother was the daughter of Admiral Baldwin. There were two other daughters. All were beautiful and talented.

They were still in their teens when, on the night of February 17, 1892, Edward Deacon shot and killed a French society man whom he found with Mrs. Deacon at the Hotel Splendide in Cannes, France.

Deacon was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, but was pardoned after a few months. He returned to the United States and died in a Waverley hospital, after divorcing his wife.

Mrs. Deacon resumed her maiden name, and with the three girls went to Rome, where they grew up. Long visits were made to Boston.

Back Bay matrons frowned and fumed when their sons became attentive to the Deacon girls, and it is believed that the tragedy in their family was one of the reasons for the opposition of the family of Prince Radziwill to their marriage.

Prince Radziwill was a member of a family whose fortune was estimated at more than $30,000,000, including estates in Lithuania. When he fell in love with the American girl, however, the Prince was comparatively a poor man.

Deny Theda Bara Is Wife of Boxing Promoter

By International News Service.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 27.—Reports that Theda Bara, the movie actress, had been secretly married to Thomas Bodkin, boxing promoter and theatrical manager, here recently, were denied today at the Bodkin home. Friends of Bodkin circulated a story that the marriage took place last Friday. Mrs. Bodkin, mother of the promoter, said that another son was married to a Pittsburgh girl. Bodkin is in Toronto with a musical comedy production.

SHAW SUES TO REGAIN CONTROL OF FIRM

Alleges Fraud and Misrepresentation on Part of Dunham, Its General Manager

Charges of alleged fraud and misrepresentation on the part of Otis Emerson Dunham of Beverly were made by Charles N. Shaw, president of Page & Shaw, in a suit filed today in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Shaw seeks to regain the controlling interest of the firm, which he says is in the hands of Dunham, attorney and general manager of the firm.

Mr. Shaw alleges he owned 2,296 shares of the 5,000 shares of common stock, which he agreed to sell to Dunham for $500,000, of which $200,000 was to be cash and the balance in notes to be paid out of the earnings of the firm.

The stock was transferred to Dunham, Shaw charges, who secured a loan of $135,000 from the First National Bank, adding $65,000, with which he paid the first installment in cash. Dunham then pledged the stock to the bank as collateral, according to the charges.

In December of 1919 he made a settlement to the bank, Shaw states, and received back the stock, although it was agreed that Shaw should have an equity in the stock until the balance of the purchase price was paid.

WARNER DECLINES TO DEBATE WITH THORE

Speaker Warner of the Massachusetts House of Representatives today declined to debate old age pensions with Wendell Phillips Thore, who sent him a challenge as a result of remarks made by Warner before the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

NEW BEDFORD FACING MILL STRIKE

Open Shop Issue Raised in Labor War Over Non-Union Workers

New Bedford, Jan. 27.—The New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association virtually threw down the gauntlet to the Textile Council at a conference called in an attempt to bring about a settlement of the strike of more than 100 loomfixers at the Nashawena Mill.

Between 500 and 600 weavers at the factory have informed the management that they will remain away from work until the fixers' grievances have been adjusted, and the city is facing another general strike in the textile industry.

The fixers have been out on strike since January 9, demanding that four non-union workmen employed in the same room with them either be compelled to join the union or be discharged.

The manufacturers flatly refused to discuss with the council leaders who attended the conference any issue involving a closed shop.

The meeting broke up with little or nothing accomplished and both sides are preparing for a complete cessation of the city's principal industry.

INFANT MORTALITY CUT IN WALTHAM

During the past year the infant mortality among Waltham children, under one year of age, was reduced almost half. The figures last year show that forty-seven children died before reaching the age of one year. The previous year eighty-one died under that age.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Joicey Williams, the well-known actress, who was recently playing at the Imperial Theatre in St. Louis, made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine."

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Jiffy-Cup Free

An Aluminum Measuring Cup

Also Dessert Molds

Send us two trade-marks from Jiffy-Jell packages—the 10 circle trade-marks on the front. That will certify that you use Jiffy-Jell.

We will mail you this half-pint cup. It is an exact cup for use with any recipe. And two fillings with water dissolve one package of Jiffy-Jell exactly right.

11 Other Molds

With the Jiffy-Cup we will send you pictures of eleven other molds—dessert and salad molds. All those molds are sent free to users of Jiffy-Jell.

We want you to have them. We want Jiffy-Jell served attractively.

It's Real Fruit

The flavors come in liquid form, in bottles. They are juices of crushed fruit concentrated.

Jiffy-Jell has a wealth of fruit flavor. We use half a pineapple, for instance, for a pint dessert. The Pineapples are crushed in Hawaii—fruit too ripe to ship.

It is real fruit, not mere flavor, that folks like and need.

Serve It Often

People need fruit daily. Jiffy-Jell supplies it at a trifling cost, and you make it in an instant.

Serve it often—three times weekly. Winter is when people need it. And every serving seems like a fruit-time dainty. Cut out this cup offer so you won't forget.

TRADING WITH RUSSIA BY U. S. FORBIDDEN

Supreme Council Note Fails to Meet Requirements of American Law

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 27.—There will be no trade between the United States and Soviet Russia for the present.

State Department officials declared today the supreme council note setting forth conditions for trade with Russia did not establish a means of trade, as required by the nation, to insure that no goods would be used for political or military purposes.

Pending such establishment of a means of trade and insurance of use of goods this government will not permit trade with Russia, it was announced.

NEW MOVE IN LOCAL FIGHT ON DRY LAW

Acting Collector of Internal Revenue Andrew J. Casey and United States District Attorney Thomas J. Boynton have been summoned to appear before the United States Supreme Court relative to the appeal of George C. Dempsey of the wholesale liquor firm of P. Dempsey & Co., of this city, who is seeking to have both Federal officials enjoined from enforcing the Volstead Act on the ground that it is unconstitutional.

In order to expedite matters Judge George W. Anderson of the District Court here recently dismissed the bill when it came before him and it was taken directly to the Supreme Court.

SALEM OFFICIALS HAVE $150 PUZZLE TO SOLVE

Salem, Jan. 27.—City officials are wondering how they can pay $150 for printing ballots for the special election on the plenary question which was forbidden by the Supreme Court. Judge Crosby restrained the city from paying out any of the $1,000 appropriated by the City Council to meet additional expenses of the election. City authorities say there is no other available source from which to take the money. It was said today that the plenary question would undoubtedly come before the Court again before it was settled.

Charges Sims Played Politics

The best illustration of any navy's deterioration in modern history is that of Great Britain. In the hundred years before the last war the British navy had been living on its reputation. Between Waterloo and 1914 about all the British navy did in a warring way was to drive a few round shot at some old forts in Sevastopol in the Crimea, and again at Alexandria preliminary to taking over Egypt; and later to sink a few Chinese floating junk-shops, by way of impressing a peaceful people that England's opium trade was a sacred institution.

"PLAYED THE GAME."

In the hundred years between Waterloo and 1914 the British naval officer became a guard to British lines of trade, the British naval officer a watch-dog of British money; inevitably the British naval officer in time became a creature of the moneyed powers. When an obstinate one did not do as the powers wished, he was removed.

So "play the Game" became the slogan to the wise ones in the British navy, meaning, of course, the political game. In that classic English comic opera, "H. M. S. Pinafore," the Lord High Admiral, K. C. B., tells how he came to his lofty eminence. "By minding my cues and never going to sea.

We laugh at that, but Gilbert and Sullivan could never have put that across "arrant" and the corruption in the navy had not become notorious.

Favoritism in the British navy culminated in the last war with the appointment of Admiral Jellico to the command of the grand fleet. Jellico's disgraceful work at Jutland is known to every naval student, and yet with an influence behind him that at Jutland it was but a natural and logical act for him; it would have been an illogical act for any other purely political admiral, for whom—"Myself first, my country second." Las ever been the real slogan.

"POLITICAL ADMIRALS."

When W. S. Sims, the best sample of a political admiral in the navy, was delegated to his chief during the war, and the better to attack his chief after the war, did deprecate the work of the American navy, he was but following out the motto of "Myself first, my country second."

Our own navy had its fat period after the Civil War, when high times came then for the old-timers who wanted to do what was right, but during the early 90s even the reactionaries began to see that we were going to have a navy again. Then, since our navy began to show signs of life, an improved navy personnel in a fine personnel with so much doing that every live officer found things to keep him busy, and even those who were not overbusy in their profession they do not have too much time for outside matters.

In my knocking about in the navy during the last fifteen years or so I have found few politicians. There were some, of course—among the officers and men both. Admiral Evans—"Fighting Bob"—had a great phrase for them when they were on the political force. "He's a politician," he used to say—"in everybody's mess and nobody's watch."

Most officers in the navy are earnest, hard-working, eager to get ahead, if more distinction and pay, and, I think, than men in civil life ashore. Among them are no many who have done great things. In a mechanical way alones they have improved and invented many things which would have brought them fame and wealth in the industries ashore but they gave these things without cost to the service. The public does not hear much about them.

But there was, and is, another type in the navy; not many, but they are there. The idea of that type is not to find themselves standing some day on the bridge of a ship fighting their country's battle. Their idea is never to do any fighting whatever if they can dodge it. They leave that to the chaps who know no better. They are "playing the game."

APPROVED BRITISHERS.

In playing the game the young officer gets along best by attaching himself to some one of high rank who is also playing the game; if the high ranker has a powerful propaganda behind him, then all the better.

When Sims was a young officer we had officers who saw nothing good unless it were British.

Knocking around among our warships I rarely met officers who talked politics, but when I did meet them it would always be an officer who approved British institutions highly, who seemed to think that the superiority of English naval and government matters generally admitted of no argument.

For myself, I know of no reason why a man should not be partial to his own ancestral standards; but if that partiality leads to a divided allegiance, then it is time he took notice of himself. "When that partiality influences him to cry up everything English or Irish or German or Chinese because it is English or Irish or German or Chinese, and cry down everything else, then that man, if he is an officer in our service, becomes a danger.

He becomes the greatest danger when he is over strong for any nation which is likely, or even liable to become a rival to our country in war or trade; because we have only to read our old histories to appreciate anew that in international affairs the friends of today may be the bitter enemies of tomorrow. That is the case of England and Germany.

For a hundred years prior to the last war England and Germany were much more friendly than the United States and England are or ever were. England was Germany's greatest backer in her war against Austria; her greatest backer also in her war against France; likewise in her despoliation of Denmark. England was Germany's greatest backer until their trade interests clashed; then from being the best people in the world the Germans became over night the most malevolent.

TRADE AT STAKE.

England may or may not be friendly today, but so sure as her trade interests and ours begin to clash she will become our enemy; that has been her past history with every nation she has ever been friendly with, and right now our trade interests and hers are more likely to clash than those of any two first class powers.

The political type of naval officer takes to staff life by choice. We must have staffs; the better the staffs the better we shall prosecute our wars, but when we see a young officer dodging his share of sea service to put in more time on staff or other work ashore, he will bear watching. It is only on the deck of a ship at sea that the naval officer can train himself properly for what should be the end and aim of every officer's life—that is, to some day fight to the death if need be, for the flag over his head. If he does not get that training when he is young he will never get it.

The kind of officer who passes up that most necessary sea service needs to be watched. The record of Sim's naval life shows a disproportionate amount of time spent in staff work here and particularly abroad; staff work abroad develops the politician much more than staff work here, because politics is a finer art with them than with us.

It is wonderful with what unanimity the English press are defending Sims in his attack on Daniels. They should; he did good work for England in the last war. And the organs of Great Britain over here are united behind the English press in defending Sims. The other day an American editorially notable for its English sympathies began an editorial: "Sims the best admiral in our navy."

That's pretty strong endorsement, isn't it, for a man who never held an admiral's command at sea? For a man who, during the war, never so much as took a cruise to sea in one of our ships? How does that editor know whether Sims is the best or the worst admiral in our navy?

REAL NAVAL HERO SILENT.

This article is not a protest against staff officers. During the war we had a staff in France which did great work. Bristol, in 1918, became a larger and more important naval base than Queenstown had ever been. It was our admiral at Brest who so coordinated the work of our forces in French waters that the shipping of those great lanes leading into the Bay of Biscay, the Channel and the Irish Sea, from the South, were made more safe than they ever had been. It was our admiralty at Brest that attended to most of that great work of convoying troopships through the war zones into France. During that work we did not lose a single trooper, and yet the officer responsible for it did not have to take his instructions from any British admiral in doing it.

You have heard a lot about Sims in this war, and yet I will venture to say that got one in twenty who reads this knows even the name of that admiral of ours who was responsible for much greater work on the other side. Probably not one in a hundred of you ever heard before the details of the work he did. Now why is it we have heard so much of the one and so little of the other? Why, because one was for himself and the other for his country?

Sims was disloyal to his chief during the war; is it surprising that he winds up by deprecating the work of our navy in the war? Watching the progress of a man like Sims has lead many an honest officer in the navy to say: "Oh, hell, what's the use? The thing is to play the game!"

And therein is the great evil; the man who is a politician first and a naval officer second, and cannot find his own interest and his country's clash—well, when he does, it is country usually which has to suffer.

Facts on the Coal Situation

Delivery—90% Efficient

In spite of the severe snow storms we have been able to deliver coal promptly, except where streets are impassable; thanks to our efficient trucks and our loyal and faithful employees.

Supply

We have an ample supply of all sizes of Best Lehigh Coal and Bituminous Coal.

New Business

We are able to take on new customers even now, and guarantee to supply their future needs.

Advice to Large Buyers

If your stock of coal is depleted, order now and consult us so that we may replenish our bins with the right sizes when the storm subsides. All coal miners' and retail dealers' employees' agreements expire March 31st. Coal may be higher. Don't get caught short.

All Rail vs. Tidewater Bituminous

Owing to high water rates, All Rail Coal from Pennsylvania can be laid down F. O. B. Boston cheaper than water borne coal. We have for sale both Penn. and New River coal.

Confiscation

We protest most emphatically against the Railroad Administration's practice of confiscating the dealers' low priced coal, leaving him no redress, and necessitating that he replace it with higher priced spot coal. It is one bf the causes of increased cost to the dealer. This happened to us very recently by the New Haven Railroad. They could have stocked up in December, the same as we did. Why confiscate coal in severe weather and stop the supply to regular dealers and consumers?

stomachs are strong enough to grapple with all conditions of restaurants, hotels, drug stores, soda fountains. The safe plan is to be provided with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets that you may eat rich and palatable food served or selected and not be troubled with sour risings or such forms of indigestion. These tablets digest food, they assist the stomach secretions and for that reason people who travel away from home and must eat as it is served may play safe by taking one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal.

You can get these tablets in any drug store anywhere in the United States or Canada, which shows in what general favor they are among those who have learned how to enjoy dinner meals.

McADOO WAITING FOR WILSON TO DECLARE SELF

By JUSTIN McGRATH,
Staff Correspondent Universal Service

Washington, Jan. 27.—There is interesting gossip in inner political circles as to the reason why little has been heard recently of the candidacy of William Gibbs McAdoo for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Since President Wilson has been confined to the White House by illness, McAdoo has made several visits to Washington and has been a guest at the executive mansion. His visits were prompted by solicitude for his father-in-law's condition. One of his visits extended over several days.

He saw the President many times during his visits, but the gossip is that never once did the President express any opinion about the boom for McAdoo or give the slightest hint of his own intentions with respect to permitting his own name to go before the convention for renomination.

Since the Jackson Day dinner little or nothing has been heard of McAdoo's candidacy and the understanding is that nothing more will be heard of it, so far as McAdoo can control expression, until after President Wilson has declared he will not seek renomination.

No such declaration from Wilson is expected until the treaty is disposed of by the Senate. As long as there is a possibility of the treaty being the important issue in the campaign there will be a possibility of Wilson's running again if his health will permit.

He does not want to run, but he has publicly declared that he would willingly sacrifice his life for the treaty.

GILLETT'S VOTE IS READY FOR COOLIDGE

Washington, Jan. 27. — The announcement of Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts, that he is not a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination is not construed by Speaker Gillett as meaning that he is not an aspirant for the nomination.

Mr. Gillett made this plain in a formal statement declining his pledge to vote for Governor Coolidge's nomination in the event of his election as a delegate to the Republican national convention still stands, unless the Governor specifically requests otherwise.

To the Land of the Rising Sun

In order that its stocks may always be as varied and as complete as possible, Jordan Marsh Company makes every effort to keep in close touch, not only with the home producing centres, near at hand, but also with the foreign markets, those fascinating treasure houses of rare and exotic merchandise which are thousands of miles away.

To this end ten representatives of this house are now on the Pacific Ocean, bound for a three months' buying tour of the Orient. They will visit the Flowery Kingdom of the Mikado and buy, among other things, richly embroidered kimonos and linens, quaint water colors, gorgeous pottery and art wares, lovely bits of teakwood. Some of them will go to the thatched cottages outside Manila, where the Filipino workers fashion dainty underwear and blouses for our American women. Others will proceed to China in search of such typical Oriental wares as filet laces, jade, embroidered robes, wicker furniture, screens and baskets.

Merchandise from the Orient is arriving in the store constantly—articles bought by our buyers last Spring. The frequency of their voyages is another evidence of our desire to be first with all that is new and desirable in importations. Those of our patrons who have a special interest in Oriental merchandise are always welcome when they wish to come here and view the many beautiful things which we import from the Far East.

WRECKING TRAIN HELD UP BY LACK OF STEAM

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 27.—After responding to three calls, the local wrecking train of the Boston & Maine Road was itself disabled. At a freight wreck at Noble's Island, the crew worked nearly all night in low temperature, and was then summoned to Salem, Mass., where a carload of coal was dinamited. Next a derailed baggage car called for attention. Owing to the cold, the wrecking engine was unable to get up steam. The Maine Central then sent a wrecking crew out of Portland to do the work.

OFFERS BABY TO HIGHEST LOVE BIDDER

Widow of War Hero Seeks Affectionate Parent for Child of 3 Weeks

New York, Jan. 27.—Going, going, going—but not yet gone. A fine healthy baby, son of one of Uncle Sam's brave fighting boys, who died after his discharge, is up at auction, to go to the highest bidder.

There's no need to call the police. Little two-weeks' old Edward Harrison is not to be sold for money. Not for enough money to run a war should his fond mother part with him. But she has a five-year-old daughter to support and, as she cannot work while caring for both children, she has decided she must reluctantly part with the boy. Therefore the auction.

The bidding is to be in quantities of love and affection and home comforts and motherly cars. Who feels qualified to bid?

Mrs. Kurl Harrison, little Edward's mother, is still at Flower Hospital, whose nurses have fallen in love with the son of the dead seaman, and of course Edward is there with her. They will remain until January 31, when Mrs. Harrison hopes to resume her work as saleswoman in a department store.

ASKS $100,000 DAMAGES FROM GRACE LA RUE

Divorced Wife of Byron Chandler Accused of Alienating Actor's Affections

New York, Jan. 27.—Grace LaRue Chandler, whose name in musical comedy and vaudeville is Grace LaRue, is the defendant in a $100,000 alienation suit, it was learned today. Initiated by Mrs. Myrtle Tannehill Hamilton.

The plaintiff's husband, Hale Hamilton, is now appearing with Miss LaRue in "Dear Me." The summons was filed, unaccompanied by the complaint.

Miss LaRue was divorced from her boy millionaire husband, Byron Chandler last Spring. Chandler declared, shortly after the divorce, that through backing his wife in two musical comedies he had sunk $70,000.

EXPECT TO TAKE DEAN CASE TO WASHINGTON

Jaffrey Selectmen Ask Attorney-General Palmer for Conference

East Jaffrey, N. H., Jan. 27.—The selectmen of this town and relatives of Dr. William Kendrick Dean, accompanied by counsel, expect to go to Washington on Wednesday, as a result of an invitation received from the capital to present facts concerning Dr. Dean's murder, at his home in this town here on the night of August 12, 1918.

They will confer with United States Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer, and with the Senators and Congressmen from New Hampshire. They will be armed with important evidence, and will thresh out international aspects of the tragedy.

The aim is to start Federal action.

PAVE WAY FOR CONFERENCE.

The Washington trip, if made according to schedule, will pave the way for a second conference with Governor John H. Bartlett at Concord. As the result of the trip they received from Washington, the Selectmen of Jaffrey sent letters to United States Senators George W. Moses and Henry W. Keyes and to Congressmen Sherman E. Burroughs and Edward H. Wason.

In these letters they sought to make appointments for conferences on Thursday next. If they receive favorable replies, they will leave here Wednesday in time to connect with the Federal express and expect to reach the Capital Thursday morning.

The Selectmen's letter to Attorney-General Palmer reads:

"Dear Sir,

"We have a vast amount of evidence proving the activity of German agents in this region, prior and subsequent to the murder of Dr. Dean, and we feel that you can be of great aid at the present time, in view of recent developments. We are very anxious to have a few minutes of your valuable time on Thursday and would greatly appreciate an immediate answer.

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "WILLIAM F. COOLIDGE, Chairman.

"PETER E. HOGAN,

"EDWARD C. BOYNTON."

HAVE IMPORTANT FACTS.

The letters sent to the New Hampshire Senators and Congressmen read:

"The Dean murder case has developed to a stage which we feel warrants a conference with our Senators and Congressmen in Washington without delay. We have important facts to call to your attention, in view of the Federal aspect of the case and we will be very grateful if you can arrange to see us at the Capitol on Thursday next. We are sending you this notice so that you may arrange, if possible, to give us a few minutes of your valuable time. We would appreciate a reply by letter or telegraph, stating if it will be agreeable to see us on that day. We are making this request on behalf of the tax-payers of Jaffrey and Cheshire County and feel that the case is of sufficient public importance to merit such a conference."

The selectmen will be accompanied on their trip to Washington by a nephew of Dr. Dean, William Dean Goddard of Pawtucket, R. I., and Attorney Harry N. Guterman, a Boston lawyer, with law offices in the Tremont Building. Mr. Guterman will outline their case for the selectmen before Attorney-General Palmer and in the conferences with the Senators and Congressmen from New Hampshire.

Attorney Guterman has drawn up for the selectmen a bill of complaint which will be presented to Governor John H. Bartlett after the selectmen return from Washington.

SHONTS' WIDOW SUES FOR SECOND MILLION

New York, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Milla D. Shonts, widow of Theodore P. Shonts, wealthy head of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, close upon her $1,000,000 alienation suit started a few days ago against Mrs. Amanda C. Thomas, filed a summons in a new $1,000,000 action against Mrs. Thomas.

No complaint accompanies the summons, but from a trustworthy source it was learned that in the new action there is involved more than $1,000,000 worth of property, real and personal, which Mrs. Shonts declares was given to Mrs. Thomas by Shonts a short time before he died.

MILLIONS TO ELIMINATE ILLITERATES IN AMERICA

Washington, Jan. 27.—The bill by Senator Kenyon of Iowa to promote Americanization by educating illiterates and aliens in the English language was passed by the Senate by the vote of 36 to 14. The bill carries an appropriation of $5,000,000, which is to be expended by the Federal government in co-operation with the several States, through the bureau of education.

Cold and Grip Germs find their earliest victims among those who are weak and run down and whose resisting power is lowest.

Father John's Medicine soothes and heals the lining of the breathing passages.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINT

It is not necessary to shampoo your hair so frequently if it is entirely and properly cleansed each time by the use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers is one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair and may be enjoyed at very little expense, by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox which can be obtained from any druggist, in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the little lop of the head. This, when rubbed into the scalp and onto every strand of hair, chemically dissolves all impurities, and is very soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to both scalp and hair. After rinsing out the lather so created, you will find the scalp is fresh, clean and free from dandruff, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.—Advertisement.

To Quickly Remove Ugly Hairs From Face

(Beauty Notes)

Beauty-destroying hairs are soon banished from the skin with the aid of a delatone paste, made by mixing some water with a little plain powdered delatone. This is spread upon the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed to remove the remaining delatone. This simple treatment banishes every trace of hair and leaves the skin without a blemish. Caution should be used to be certain that it is delatone you buy.—Advertisement.

BOSTON IRISH SOCIETIES ACTIVE

To arouse interest and aid for the Irish Republic a public meeting will be held in Faneuil Hall Sunday afternoon, under the direction of Paul Revere Branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom. Members of other branches and supporters of the Irish cause have been invited. A resolution embodying the sentiments of the members of the branch composed of World War veterans, will be adopted.

Former Assistant District Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle, who had the rank of captain in the recent war, will preside, and the speakers will include the Rev. James Gratton Mahon and Major Eugene Kincaid of New Jersey.

A. O. H. AIDS FUND.

Active aid is being given to the Irish Victory Fund by the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Divisions of the order in all sections of the country are buying thousands of dollars worth of Irish Republic bonds. The Ladies' Auxiliary branches are co-operating.

National President James E. Deery of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, a justice of the Dublin police court, will be the guest of the State branch of the order in Boston, Thursday, March 18. He will speak in behalf of the membership drive of the organization.

Tentative plans are now being made by local divisions of the order for his coming. He will be preceded by Miss Mary F. McWhorter of Chicago, who will be the guest of the Ladies' Auxiliary. She will make a plea for all women of Irish birth or extraction to join the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

DIV. 72 BALL.

Paine Memorial Hall, Appleton street, will be the scene of an enjoyable gathering Friday evening, February 12, the occasion being the annual ball and Irish night of Division No. 72, Ancient Order Hibernians. Plans will be outlined for the affair at a meeting to be held Sunday evening in Phoenix Hall, No. 724 Washington street.

Irish step dancing will be a feature of the reunion and ball of the County Waterford Association in Paine Memorial Hall, Appleton street, tomorrow evening. Andrew J. Gambon heads the committee of arrangements.

CAVAN MEN ELECT.

Officers at a meeting of the County Cavan Association in Appleton Hall, No. 9 Appleton street, tomorrow evening, President John Foley of the Central Council of Irish County Clubs will officiate, assisted by Thomas F. Wynne, Miss Agnes McGrail and Myles McLoughlin.

On February 6 at Corinthian Hall, No. 1651 Washington street, South End, will be held the annual ladies' night and reception of the County Carlow Association.

Tentative plans are under way for the reunion of the Central Council of Irish County Clubs and Thomas Foley heads the committee of arrangements. The affair will be held in Hibernian Hall, No. 184 Dudley street, Roxbury, at a date to be announced later.

GALWAY MEN'S CONCERT.

Assistant District Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher will speak on "The Irish Question," at a meeting of the County Sligo Association in Deacon Hall, No. 1651 Washington street, South End, Sunday evening. His address will be followed by a concert of Irish music contributed by talented members of the organization.

Everything is in readiness for the eleventh reunion of the Kildare Association, which will be held in Corinthian Hall, No. 1651 Washington street, South End, Monday evening, February 9.

St. Brendan Society's officers will be installed at a meeting to be held in Deacon Hall Thursday evening. The annual reunion will be held in Hibernian Hall, Dudley street, Roxbury, Tuesday evening, February 4.

MONAGHAN INSTALLATION.

A public installation of the officers-elect of the Monaghan Association will be a feature of the meeting to be held Friday evening in Paine Memorial Hall, No. 9 Appleton street. William F. Henderson will act as marshal of the staff of the installing officer, President John Foley of the Central Council.

In Commercial Hall, No. 694 Washington street, this evening the members of Division No. 25 and Ladies' Auxiliary No. 27 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will hold a joint installation of their newly elected officers. Martin J. Smith and Mrs. Mary Landers will be the installing officers. Among the speakers will be the Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell and the Rev. Robert E. Lee, both of St. James' Church, Harrison avenue.

Arrangements have been completed for a lecture on "Ireland" to be delivered by Judge Daniel F. Cohalan of New York at Notre Dame Academy on Sunday afternoon, February 29, at 2 o'clock. This lecture will be under the auspices of the Notre Dame Alumnae Association. Tickets may be procured at the Mayflower Shoshan Company, the Boston Catholic Circulating Library or from Miss Julia F. Donahue, No. 50 East street, Dorchester. All are cordially invited to be present.

FRANKLIN SQUARE FUND NOW MORE THAN $17,000

Dr. George L. Perin, head of the Franklin Square House on East Newton street, South End, directing the big $140,000 campaign which has been launched by the House organization to lift the mortgage indebtedness, has issued a statement to the friends and well wishers of the institution urging everyone to help this campaign.

Up to today the workers have turned in a total of over $17,000 with the expectation high that the surest week will bring a number of surprises in the way of substantial contributions.

NEW MUSICAL COMEDY AT COLONIAL

By FRED J. McISAAC.
Dramatic Editor.

"She's a Good Fellow," with book by Anne Caldwell, lyrics by Jerome Kern and book by Ann Caldwell music by Jerome Kern, has moved into the Colonial Theatre. A capacity audience witnessed the opening performance last night and appeared to enjoy itself.

The piece is one of the intimate sort of musical entertainments, like previous Kern musical shows of the "Ziegfeld Follies" sort.

It deals with a seminary girl who elopes with a naval officer and gets dragged back to school. The officer, disguised as a girl breaks into the seminary, and the usual complications of a boy in a female seminary ensue.

I remember the exploits of Billy B. Van in a burlesque called "The Beauty Daughter," as an assistant to a ladies' seminary. Joseph Santley isn't quite as funny as Billy used to be in a similar role, but then he has to be more careful.

The big bit of "She's a Good Fellow" are the Duncan Sisters, two infants terrible from vaudeville whose specialty is mugging and dancing. They positively stopped the show—it wasn't going very fast.

James C. Marlowe, who can usually be looked to for lots of comedy, is a disappointed English artist, revolted by the class of play which won him great renown before he took to enjoying himself personally.

TREMONT THEATRE—The next attraction at the Tremont Theatre will be Raymond Hitchcock and his Wynn Carnival," which begins an engagement next Monday night. Mr. Hitchcock's name will be featured in the show, that of the jazz and syncopated variety predominating.

SHUBERT THEATRE—Coming from New York in two weeks to the Majestic Theatre will be Oliver Morosco's comedy hit, "Civilian Clothes," with Olive Tell and Thurston Hall in the leading roles.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—Once more Boston will soon have Sir Harry Lauder in its midst, with new songs, a new company of entertainers, his famous Kittie Bagpipe Band, and several of his favorite songs of past seasons. The date is Monday evening, February 9th, at the Boston Opera House.

COLUMBIA THEATRE — Albert Hay Malotte always a favorite with the audiences, and Gladys Leslie, whose winning ways have ensnared her to millions, headed the program at Loew's Columbia Theatre yesterday.

DANCING AND GAMES FOR CAMPFIRE GIRLS

Plans are taking form for the first dancing and game party of the Campfire Girls of Greater Boston to be held February 7, in the Boston Normal Gymnasium on Huntington avenue. It is to be a costume party. During a march the judges will select the most attractive and original costumes, for which prizes will be awarded. The guardians in charge are: Miss Marjorie Hurd, Miss Cambridge, chairman; Mrs. L. H. Stapley and Mrs. O. T. Kelley of Dorchester, Miss Anne Lyons, Mrs. Clarence Whelpley of Roslindale, refreshments; Miss Alice Todd of Somerville, tickets; Mrs. F. M. Ryder of Jamaica Plain, hall.

"TEA FOR THREE" WILL SURELY OPEN TONIGHT

"Tea for Three," Roi Cooper Megrue's exquisite comedy, delayed in its journey from Chicago to Boston, causing a cancelation of its performance last night, will positively open tonight at Selwyn's Park Square Theatre. The company and scenery did not reach Boston until late last night, more than ten hours overdue.

'AIDA' IS WELL SUNG AT THE ARLINGTON

"Aida" is the offering of the Boston English Opera Company at the Arlington Theatre during this, the last week of their phenomenally successful season here. The spectacular Verdian tragedy was given an excellent presentation by this company and a capacity audience welcomed it.

The scenic effects are unusually good, and the half dozen difficult changes are negotiated with ease. Phil Pein, stage director, was called before the curtain at the end of the moonlit Nile scene and Arthur Dunham, conductor, also had to appear in front of the footlights by popular demand. The orchestration is of a markedly high type.

Miss May Barron excelled as Amneris. She possesses a delightfully resonant and musical voice. As usual, Stanley Deacon made an impression. As Amonasro, this fine young baritone took advantage to again display his excellent vocalism as well as dramation. Harold Gels was an impressive and tuneful Ramdis.

Miss Hazel Eden was the Aida, and a capable lover. Lynn Griffin, also a pleasing tenor voice, was the messenger. The chief tenor role of Rhadames was filled by Leonard Sachse. Those who have not heard the Boston English Opera Company would do well to take advantage of the opportunity this last week affords them.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—The top line vaudeville numbers at the Orpheum Theatre exploits Fred Ardath's amusing offering, with Matt Well, which he termed "The Finishers," and their doings in "the movie war." Others deserving of special mention were Faye and Jack Smith in an offering of fragrant tunes; Myrna Kehn, in an act called, "Doing-Nuttin'," Vera Calhoun, with her spectacular scenic song revue, "The Girl in the Air"; "Brewster," who well deserves the title of "Vaudeville's most intelligent canine actor," and Erford's Golden Whirl, being sensational revolving aerial feats. The feature film was the first Boston showing of "The Beggar Prince."

GLOBE THEATRE—Sessue Hayakawa, in "The Beggar Prince," heads the bill at Loew's Globe Theatre for the initial half of this week. This well-named star of the Orient has produced a series of the finest photoplays imaginable since his name has been linked with that of the Robertson-Cole Company and Manager Meagher, ever on the alert for the best, has been quick to realize his drawing power.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE—"Way Down East," which was presented for the first time in Somerville yesterday afternoon and evening at the popular Somerville Theatre, has not lost a particle of its old appeal—in fact, judging from the capacity audiences, it has gained in popularity. Originally produced by William A. Brady, "Way Down East" took the country by storm, and it is safe to say that it has been produced more often—for the benefit of American theatres than any other play of its kind.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE — Georges Walsh, whose latest photoplays of no mean achievement have been filmed under the William Fox banner, held Codman's audience at the Codman Square Theatre, Dorchester, in considerable suspense when exhibited a remarkable amount of strength and athletic skill.

MODERN AND BEACON — This week's program at the Modern and Beacon Theatres is the best comedy bill of the season, the feature being Wallace Reid, in "Double Speed," a rollicking farce, which gives this popular young star the best role of his career. Marguerite Clark, in "All-of-a-Sudden Peggy," is another feature.

FUN ABOUNDS IN BILL AT KEITH'S

The bill this week at Keith's Theatre is an especially well-balanced one. "The Bandbox Revue—The Girls' Club," which is in reality a musical comedy reduced to one act, is the headliner. Bobby Barnard appears in the leading comedy role and is supported by a clever chorus.

The program is also featured with another one-act playlet, in which Lew Fields and Lew Cody appear, "Town," a clever skit, satiring New York cafe life.

Margaret Young, a newcomer to Boston, brought with her a number of high-grade songs, which, when she was well received, and her manner of putting them over promises for her a big future. Also on the bill the next time she comes to town.

Another new country and will be seen in Ed. Ford, an Australian facial contortionist, who presents a screaming-ly funny line of facial faces.

The remainder of the program consists of Percy Bronson and Brother, ladder balancers; Murray Sisters, in songs and dances; McDevitt, Kelly and Quinn; Mack Sutch, "Rube Movers and the Actress;" Anna Gray, harpist, and Delmore and Lee, aerial gymnasts.

UPHAM'S CORNER STRAND — Heading a bill of extraordinary excellence yesterday at Upham's Corner Strand was Charlie Chaplin in his latest million-dollar comedy, "A Day's Pleasure." Mabel Normand in "Upstairs," Norma Talmadge in "The Law of Conquest," the Strand News Weekly and organ recitals by Harry Rodgers complete the program.

'COPPERHEAD' AN EXCITING FILM PLAY

"The Copperhead," starring Lionel Barrymore, was shown for the first time in Boston yesterday at the Park Theatre, where it will have a limited engagement. This wonder-picture from the play of Augustus Thomas is a photoplay extraordinary, and relates an absorbing tale of life in America during the exciting period just before and during the Civil War.

There have been few, very few pictures which hold the interest of the spectator in the manner of "The Copperhead," and the superb acting of Lionel Barrymore in the title role will be the talk of the town before the week is ended.

This always pleasing actor rises to great heights in his impersonation of Bill Shaiton, and his work places him at once among the really great actors of the screen.

He is given excellent support by a very capable cast, including Doris Rankin (Mrs. Lionel Barrymore), Nicholas Schnell as Abraham Lincoln, William P. Carleton, Frank Dayne, Leslie Stowell, Calvin Lee, Richard Carlyle and Jack Ridgway. The Civil War scenes are a triumph of expert directorial skill and great numbers of supernumeraries are used.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Lovers of romance are finding an irresistible appeal in the screen adaptation of Richard Harding Davis' novel, "Soldiers of Fortune," which was shown to crowded houses yesterday at Gordon's Olympia. The triumph at the Scollay Square Olympia yesterday in her newest and strongest vehicle, "Stronger Than Death." The vaudeville program included George M. Rosener, Rath and Beck, Hegerd and Moore, Black and White, and Wallace Galvin.

WALDORF THEATRE—The motion picture fans of Boston are flocking in great numbers to the Waldorf Theatre this week to witness the initial showing in Boston of Charlie Chaplin's latest comedy, "The Idle Class," the photoplay version of Rex Beach's most popular and widely read novel, "The Pay Off." It is without a doubt the best picture ever made of the great Keystone comedian, and its wonderful scenery, thrilling plot, and a great cast all combine to make it a feature picture.

How Signs Of Old Age Creep Into Your System When The Iron In Your Blood Runs Low

For Want of Iron, You May Be Old at Thirty— Nervous, Irritable and All Run-Down— While at Fifty or Sixty, With Plenty of Iron in Your Blood, You May Be Young in Feeling and Brimming Over with Vim and Energy

IRON IS THE RED BLOOD FOOD

That Helps Strengthen the Nerves, Restores Wasted Tissue and Aids in Giving Renewed Force and Power to the Body. Physicians Explain Why Administration of Simple Nuxated Iron Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Delicate, Run-down People

Old age has already sunk its talons into thousands of men and women who ought still to be enjoying the springtime and summer of life simply because they have allowed worry, overwork, nervous strain, dissipation and occupational poisons to sap the iron from their blood and thereby destroy its power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. You will find plenty of people at 40 who are broken in health and steadily going downward to physical and mental decay while others at 50 are strong, active, alert and seemingly growing younger every year. One class grows old and dies like leaves in autumn while the other by keeping up a strong power of resistance against disease may pass the three-score and ten mark with surprising health, strength and vigor. But you should not expect to look and feel young and vigorous unless you have plenty of iron in your blood, and physicians explain below why they prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to supply the iron deficiency in the weak, nervous, and run-down so as to build them up into stronger, healthier men and women.

YOU ARE AGEING
If you are wearied by the activities of your daily life.
YOU ARE AGEING
If you have lost the snap, vim, vigor and youthfulness of your movements.
YOU ARE AGEING
If your skin is shrinking and your face looks wrinkled, careworn and old.
YOU ARE AGEING
If you are the enthusiasm for tackling your problems has waned.

"Many a man and woman who ought still to be young in feeling is losing the old time vim and energy that makes life worth living simply because their blood is starving for want of iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician at Bellevue Hospital Out-door Depts., New York, and the author of the following article. "Thousands are needlessly losing their health because they do not realize that the blood—has fastened its grip on them and is sapping their strength, vitality and energy. But in my opinion you can't make strong, keen, forceful men and healthy, rosy-cheeked women by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble then purchase Nuxated Iron in original packages from reliable druggists and commence taking it at once. Be sure that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations of Nux Vomica and other similar iron products and failed to get the results you desired, be sure that you are entirely different thing from organic iron.

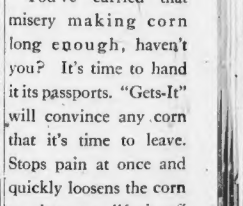
Dr. Solomons, Baker formerly Physician and Surgeon of Monmouth Memorial Hospital, N. J., writes: "After a careful personal examination of the formula and my own experience with it, I feel strongly impressed that it is a preparation which any physician can safely prescribe with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results."

Manufacturers' Note. Nuxated Iron, which has been used by Dr. Sullivan and other physicians with such surprising results, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black and decayed, upset the stomach or cause constipation, as the inorganic iron products often do. It is dispensed in our city by Lawrence & Co., Chicago, and all other druggists.

"Gets-It" or Corns, Which?

Few Drops at Night Spells "Good-Night" For Any Corn.

It's farewell to any corn that "Gets-It" lands on. If you have a "pet" corn that you want to keep, don't let "Gets-It" come near it or you'll surely lose that pet. A few drops takes all the "pep" out of any corn, makes it let go so it lifts right off without your feeling it.



You've carried that misery making corn long enough, haven't you? It's time to hand it its passports. "Gets-It" will convince any corn that it's time to leave. Stops pain at once and quickly loosens the corn so that you lift it off whole. It's easy, safe, painless, quick and absolutely certain. "Gets-It" never fails to get it.

"Gets-It," the only sure, guaranteed, money-back corn remover, costs but a trifle at any drug store. Mfd. by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

WINTRY WEATHER WILL NOT DOWN TALK OF BRAVES-GIANTS DEAL

RABBIT IS LIKELY TO GO

Grant Denies and Maranville Does Not Know, but New York Needs Players

By NICK FLATLEY.

Blizzards and zero weather and things like that usually put the damper on baseball rumors along about this time of the year, but one yarn dis about as merrily as ever through drifts and gales this gelid period—that about Rabbit Maranville going from the Braves to the Giants.

Fans have become real aceptics hereabouts. They figure that money will do just about anything to the Boston teams—if enough is offered—and they know that when the Giants got down to brass tacks the bidding for the midget will be very, very high.

Denials from both clubs don't alter the general belief in the least, showing perhaps that your fan is not quite so gullible as he used to be. The Rabbit right now is to the Braves what Babe Ruth was to the Sox—just about the whole team. If he goes, the Tribe will have to begin all over again.

Owner Grant, in conversations, has repeatedly stated that absolutely no bid had been made for his star shortstop, and that consequently he hadn't any idea of a trade in mind. He admitted, of course, that he might let Maranville go, if he could get in exchange enough men to really strengthen the Braves.

PLAYERS OR CASH.

He may be offered a flock of players—the Giants could afford a few good ones for a star like the Rabbit—or perhaps he will be offered a deck of hard cash. After a losing year, with a club that isn't any too high in popular favor anyhow, the gold would be a very great temptation to the new magnate. It rests with the future, of course, but you can bet a bob to your fur-lined earlaps that some bid for Mister Maranville will be forthcoming shortly.

Wherefore, our baseball populace is waiting with more or less pessimistic interest for the joint assembly of the league out in Chicago early next month. This meeting will pass on to the world all deals that are to be made before the season starts, and there are sure to be bunches of them.

GIANTS TO BUILD UP.

The Giants, anxious to build up and get in the pennant class again, to offset the popularity that Ruth's home runs will get the Yankees, will bring all their financial artillery to bear on the poorer clubs, and the stars will be much in demand. Which, incidentally, will be a good thing for said stars, as they can hold out for plenty of money and get it.

Owner Grant of the Braves has shown a desire to build up his team, for he knows that he has a great chance to get in right this year, if he produces. He will boost both the game and his Braves if he passes up the lures that will be held out for the greatest of present day infielders. The commercial aspect of the pastime must be driving many a dyed-in-the-wool fan to the golf outfits in the sporting goods store windows.

RABBIT KNOWS NOTHING.

We hopped down to Springfield to see the Rabbit, and found out what he knew about himself as a trading possibility. He knew nothing at all, which was unfortunate enough for interesting purposes, but encouraging, inasmuch as it showed that the midget had not reached a stage where the individual most concerned was talked to.

Maranville has been very busy all Winter working in a gym and coaching a basketball team. He reports that the shoulder he fractured last Autumn has recovered entirely. He played one game of basketball to see how it felt, and then quit.

"I've learned not to take any more fooling chances," he observed to himself. "I like to be busy, but I know that a little injury fooling around is likely to knock me out of a few years at baseball, which has become quite a wealthy profession, I see by the papers.

IN BEST OF SHAPE.

"I have kept in better trim this Winter than I ever did before and will be right there when the old ball opens. I played quite a bit of basketball to see if my shoulder was as strong as it felt. It was, so I stopped.

"I have read a lot of stories about going to the Giants, but I haven't heard a single word from the club about it. I saw President Grant, and saw Mgr. Dunn, during the Winter, and nothing was said about me being a Giant, so I don't think the story will amount to much, though it looks as if anything could happen to baseball nowadays.

"I started in Boston, and I've always been friends with everybody there, and I'm not anxious to change. We can one pennant after being away down for a few years, and we're due to repeat. None of the young birds that got tried out are bound to come through, and with a couple of stars tacked on, we can scrap along with anybody."

WAKEFIELD HIGH WINS IN ABBREVIATED GAME

Wakefield High defeated Cambridge Latin, 2 to 0, in an abbreviated hockey game on Quannapowitt Lake. The Cambridge Latin players were late arriving and it was decided to play as long as possible. The game was called at the close of 20 minutes of play.

46 HARVARD MEN TO COMPETE IN B. A. A. GAMES

Harvard will contribute 46 entries to the list of the B. A. A. track meets to be held in Mechanics' Hall, February 7. Captain Dennis O'Connell will compete only in one event, and that as anchor man in the relay. However, Harvard will make a strong attempt to win the mile without O'Connell, for Pooch Donovan has entered five men, of whom Dr. G. Bemis, H. Seabury and G. F. Wason are the strongest.

The complete list of entries:

Relay race—780 yards per man—D. F. O'Connell, W. H. Goodwin, A. W. Douglass, A. McNeily, H. Wharton, J. E. Nally, H. D. Costigan, E. T. Doherty.

Freshman Relay Race—880 yards to the man—J. E. Kennedy, C. H. Hawes, J. W. Cutting, W. H. Crandall, W. C. Bennett, J. G. Winchester, R. D. Howard, S. Mitchell, C. H. Nichols, V. Chapin.

Relay, 390 yards—Against M. I. T. at Cambridge—Goodwin, R. Chute, W. H. Goodwin, A. W. Wagman, D. Wheaton, J. T. Baldwin, R. B. Tracy, W. F. Gondell, E. T. Doherty.

Forty-yard dash—C. S. Evans, C. H. Walker.

Three-mile run—H. M. Malon.

Mile run—A. J. Fox, J. R. Nally, F. G. Bemis, H. Seabury, G. F. Wason.

One thousand-yard run—W. F. Goodell, G. M. Ramsey, W. C. Bennett.

High jump—C. G. Krogness, B. H. Tracy, B. S. Laird.

B. C. RELAY TEAM TO RUN AT BROOKLYN

The Boston College relay team will run against the University of Pennsylvania quartet Saturday night at the Brooklyn college games. Besides the relay men, nine runners are entered in the different events.

Coach Jack Ryder will take seven relay runners, Captain Bill Dempsey, Walter Donovan, Joe Dunn—W. F. Nolan, Joe Sullivan, Jim Kelly and Arthur Fauteux. The quartet will be chosen from among them. The other entries are: 70 and 200-yard dash, Dempsey and Kelly; 440-yard run, Dinger Dolan; 1,000-yard run, George Scully, Joe Crane, Frank O'Brien and Frank Chenault; two-mile run, Terry McGovern and Ed Russell.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY OPENS WITH LOWELL TEXTILE

May 1, Harvard freshmen; 5, Tufts second (pending); 8, Holy Cross freshmen; 12, Groton at Groton; 13, Dean; 19, Harvard second; 22, Yale freshmen; 26, Middlesex; 29, Worcester at Worcester.

HARVARD MEETS TECH HOCKEY TEAM FEB. 4

Harvard and Tech will meet at the Pavilion, February 4. After much argument between managements of the two teams on a date for the meeting of the Crimson and the engineers, the date was decided upon. Last Fall, when hockey practice started, Harvard opened Tech January 7 as the only date on which she could meet them. This date was refused by Manager Officer of the Tech team, who held out for a date later in the season.

Middlesex Victor

In the annual hockey game between Middlesex School and Noble and Greenough the former school was the victor by the score of 3 to 0, at the Middlesex rink, Concord.

"TWO AND THREE" "PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER" WITH "BUGS" BAER

OUIJA BOARDS

AN epidemic of flu and French pastry has the works by both handles.

THE critical condition of the country is aggravated by the outburst of a Ouija board rush. Ouija is pronounced wee-jee like a shoat caught under a gate. Wee-jee, wee-jee, wee-jee! With the oil on the second syllable, reading from left to right, which is the usual procedure when identifying flashlight photographs of the Visiting Firemen's banquet.

DON'T treat this Weejee thing too lightly, like a grocer weighing a pound of anything. It's almost as serious as the Delsarte scourge which weakened the U. S. in 1880, the bustle fever of 1890 and the ukulele crimes of 1915.

WE'VE heard of the magic carpet, but who ever heard of flatwheeling down to the lumber yard and grabbing a piece of enchanted scantling? That's all the Weejee board is. A hunk of kindling wood that's too lazy to work at its trade. By shoving a wooden flatiron over its occult surface you can get into communication with the spiritual hallwicks and find out why a plumber always spends two hours in the attic looking for a leak in the cellar. And also, after he does reach the cellar, why does he think he can find the leak by pulling the stoppers out of all your bottles?

TREAD lightly in the kitchen, stranger, the linoleum may be supernatural.

By rubbing your busted arches lightly over its grease spangled surface it may reveal the secret of the Sphinx, or why A. Ham Lewis' pink whiskers faded when the English blockade cut off the supply of German dyes. Even the humblest object may possess the power of communing with the departed. The nut cracker may be the keyboard on which we will establish gossip with Alexander Dowie, of Zion City, Ill. The pale, anaemic corkscrew—ah—but why get another toothache in a pulled tooth?

By the old days a woodpile was only a woodpile, but since the Weejee bug sprouted forns the lumber yard possesses powers which a king's ransom could not buy. And in those days it was no small thing to call the dowager empress a fat bum. And get away with it. Woodman, spare that oak bush. In childhood it sheltered me. And in my second childhood I'll make a Weejee board of it now. Don't put the axe to that hickory nut vine. One massage of its gnarled surface and that nut tree may start Hamlet's old man and the Headless Horseman of Sleepy Hollow off on another ghostly marathon. They were nuts.

WEEN starting on a Weejee seance proceed gently. Don't ask the collection of seventh splinters of seventh splinters too much. Don't start in by seeking the solution to the telephone trouble. Too much strain will cause the powerful Weejee to warp. Don't try to get into communication with your departed husband unless the Weejee is insulated. It may get red-hot and burn your little fingerettes.

IF a slab of floor material possesses telepathic powers, why not experiment with other woods? A wedge out of an old mahogany bar would be the darb. Twirl both mitts over the polished grain and think of the Eighteenth Amendment, not as an epitaph, but as a psalm of hope. If the departed spirits don't answer the first ring, don't get discouraged and lick the varnish off the high-licensed Weejee bar. There may yet be bottled in bond balm in Gilead. Keep rubbing and your efforts may be rewarded by the angelic tinkle of a ghostly cash register in some far-off spiritual cafe. Don't get faint-hearted if your first seven years' efforts go for Sweeney.

YOU must have faith.

LEWIS SURE HE CAN DEFEAT DRAAK

"Straigler" Ed Lewis writes that he is feeling as good as ever and that while he figures Tom Draak will give him a stiff battle at the Grand on Tuesday night the finish will find the Hollander on his back with the referee gently tapping Draak as a token of victory. Ed hopes by his showing to prove his right to again get a fair shot at the big fellow for the title.

Promoter Tuohey today booked Ed Patsy McCarthy and Peter Goulet to meet for a finish match as a preliminary to the Draak-Lewis session.

HARVARD FRESHMEN BEAT ARLINGTON HIGH SEVEN

The Harvard freshman seven defeated Arlington High, 5 to 2. Smooth ice and almost no wind made it a fast game and gave an opportunity for a much faster brand of hockey.

HEYDLER WOULD CREDIT ALL HOME RUNS

President John Heydler of the National League will support the move to give ball players home runs if they hit the ball out of the lot in the ninth inning with the winning run or runs on base, if such a change should be recommended by the sporting rules committee. Heydler also would have the scoring rules committee decide just how many bases a player may receive on the hit that wins the game.

Again a change which Heydler says he will favor if it should be approved by the scoring committee is to include protested games in the records. Eddie Ronah lost the batting championship of the National League in 1918 because three hits were taken from him which were made in a game which later was thrown out when a protest was sustained.

As the players work just as hard in games which later may be protested as in other contests, Heydler contends that the batting, the fielding and the pitching records should be included in the averages. He would not record such a game as a victory or a defeat in the games won and lost by pitchers, however.

WOULD SHIFT TRACK MEET TO EAST ARMORY

Word has been sent to Manager Francis Hart of the Noble & Greenough School track team by the manager of H. S. of Commerce that the latter team would like to have the dual meet scheduled for next Friday in the outdoor board track at Ryan's Field, Brookline, shifted to the East Armory.

Commerce has not had any outdoor training, and Coach Ned Sherlock fears his charges might catch cold.

The only event in the program that would be necessary to shift is the mile. Outdoors it would have to be at 40 yards; at the armory the distance is 60 yards. Only three places will count in the different events, instead of the customary four.

CALIFORNIA ACCEPTS DATES HARVARD OFFERS

Fred Moore, graduate treasurer of the Harvard A. A, has received a telegram from the baseball management of the University of California accepting the baseball dates which were offered them by the Crimson. They are June 2 and June 5, for while Boston College was booked prior to the break in athletic relations between the two colleges.

June 2 is still exclusive, as it is already booked as the date for the third game with Princeton. If, however, a third or rubber game is unnecessary, the Crimson players will meet the Westerners at Cambridge. The arrangement has been agreed to by California.

YALE AND WESLEYAN FIVES CLASH TONIGHT

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 27.—With the New England college basketball title at stake, Yale will meet Wesleyan here tonight. The visitors have defeated Trinity, Amherst and Williams on their trip and are regarded as the team next to Yale, which is the undisputed leader for the title. Yale has reached the halfway mark in the intercollegiate season without a defeat.

TECH SWIMMERS OPEN SEASON SATURDAY NIGHT

The Technology swimming team will open its season Saturday night, Manager Ralph Geckler is negotiating for a dual meet with Springfield Y. M. C. A. College. Efforts to schedule a meet with Harvard for this week failed because of mid-year examinations coming this week at the university. Tech will meet the Crimson about the middle of February.

CLUB GAME HAS BIG BEARING ON HOCKEY TITLE

The championship of the Boston Hockey League hinges on the result of the game between Brookline Club and Dartmouth Club tomorrow night at the Ice Pavilion, Cambridge. These teams share a ten tie in the local section and with the withdrawal of the first round of play some speedy hockey is looked for in this match game of a doubleheader. In the other game Harvard varsity will play Tufts varsity.

George V. Brown of the National Hockey Association has announced that the game this week will give him a line on the possibilities for the elimination game Wednesday, February 4. He urges every player to show his best in the games this week so that full justice may be accorded each man when he is ready to announce the makeup of the two teams which will battle next week for the right to represent this city in the Olympic tryout series with Pittsburgh.

SCHOOL HOCKEY NEARS MIDWAY POINT

The Interscholastic Hockey League will be in action tomorrow with three games on the schedule. The midway point in the season comes within a week and the four teams that are to play for the championship in the Ice Pavilion will be determined soon. At present the four most formidable teams are the Cambridge Latin, Newton, Arlington and Brookline.

Cambridge Latin is now in the leading place by virtue of three victories. Newton, Arlington and Brookline have all been defeated by the Cambridge team. Somerville High is practically out of the race, having already lost two games. Melrose High started in the season in great shape, but their work of late has not been such as to warrant them a place among the first four. Now that the Melrose team has a new inclosed rink at Messenger Meadow in which to practice, Joe Behrle, coach of the team, has chances of improving the seven.

Captain "Art" Ryan takes his English High hockey team to Exeter tomorrow to meet the Academy team. English has not enjoyed a very successful season so far and is likely to have a hard time with Exeter. The Exeter seven has been winning all their games, with the exception of the one in which Charlie O'Hearn, the former Brookline High star, was absent.

The field events of the triangular meet between West Roxbury, South Boston and Charlestown will be run off tomorrow at the Charlestown High gymnasium. West Roxbury and the others in the track events which were staged last week, with South Boston finishing second. Only seven points divided the two schools, which will make the field events the deciding points in the meet.

The Dorchester High and English High intermediates and juniors had a dual meet today in the East Armory. English Junior won from Dorchester Friday by a 48 to 40 score, but their chances in the other two classes are not so bright. English High will especially strong in the intermediate division, but they have lost six of the good men through graduations or by their moving up to the senior class. Their chance did not look as good in today's meet as in the senior class.

The triangular meet between Brighton High, Hyde Park and West Roxbury at the East Armory Thursday will bring Coulter Fisher some fast boys. Captain Ray Duffey of Brighton High is capable of making good times in both the 40-yard dash and will make Hussey and Horan of the Hyde Park team step to keep up. West Roxbury step fast to beat him in his events. Tom Scanlon has a good chance to win, which will put him shape up well with any of the other district high school teams.

PRESIDENT ADEE OPPOSES TENNIS RULES CHANGE

Opposition to changes in the playing rules proposed for action at the annual meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, is expressed by George T. Adee, the association's president.

While he doubts the wisdom of some of the changes themselves, his principal objection is based upon the belief that such changes should be made only after consultation with the tennis playing countries. The resumption of international tennis in 1920, with the prospect of increased activity in the coming seasons, emphasizes the desirability of having uniform playing rules, and, in Mr. Adee's opinion, it would be extremely unwise for the United States to make the changes proposed. Mr. Adee also recognizes the importance of uniform rules for international play. In this matter, he says, "I never give up hope of holding the ice sports, but indications point to a lengthy delay

B. A. A. ICE CARNIVAL AGAIN IS POSTPONED

The B. A. A. ice carnival, planned for tomorrow night, has been postponed again. The committee in charge of the affair will not give up hope of holding the ice sports, but indications point to a lengthy delay

Sergeant Ray Smith Beats Bob Martin on Points

Cleveland, Jan. 27.—A controversy which arose over a bout staged in France, where both men were members of the A. E. F., was settled when Sergeant Ray Smith outpointed Bob Martin of Akron, champion heavyweight of the A. E. F., in a slashing ten-round bout here. Both lads met in a bout in France which resulted in a draw.

HIGH COST OF SPORT SHOWN IN MAT BOUT

New York, Jan. 26.—Forty thousand dollars for a wrestling match, $20,000 for the moving picture rights, and from $3 to $20 to witness it.

No wonder the sporting world is a Bedlam. Just as it was trying to decide whether Jack Dempsey was worth several hundred thousand dollars in these days of the high cost of everything, along comes Jack Curley and says that Caddock and Stecker, who are to wrestle at Madison Square Garden Friday night, are to divide a purse of $40,000.

Bless New York still has its doubts about any mat bout being worth that amount of lucre. But the fact is that Caddock and Stecker are considered that sum. And in addition some film company has paid $20,000 for the film rights of this match.

It is evident that wrestling has come back to its own again. It has been elevated to its former position on sporting programs after a spell of disrepute brought on by crooked promoters.

BROOKLINE DAY POLICE BEAT NIGHT IN SHOOT

The first shooting competition of the Brookline police department was held in the basement of the Brookline Town Hall, a team from the day platoon defeating a team representing the night platoons, for the large cup offered by the commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the Brookline police department.

The competition was very close and was won by the day men with only four points to spare, the total scores being, day men, 241; night men, 237. The men used their service revolver and shot at 12 yards.

Captain Chester T. Wing, captain of the Home Guard, was master of ceremonies.

HARVARD REQUESTS HENLEY POSTPONEMENT

Rowing authorities at Harvard have written to the officials in charge of the English Henley regatta, requesting a postponement in the date, if possible.

Harvard rows Yale at New London on June 25, and the royal regatta is scheduled for June 30, which would cut down the possibility of either Harvard or Yale as competitors.

As the Crimson crew won the Grand Challenge cup in 1914, it is to be hoped that the English authorities will see their way clear to postponing the contest until July 4 so that the Harvard oarsmen will have a chance to defend their title.

DEMPSEY SAYS LET WIFE SHOW LETTERS

Los Angeles, Jan. 27.—Sensational charges made by Mrs. Maxine Dempsey, divorced wife of Jack Dempsey, that he had evaded the draft and had been a slacker under threats to sign his questionnaire so that he could be classified as having dependents, were answered by the heavyweight champion with a challenge.

"Let her produce the letters which she claims she has and which she says are evidence that I harangued a deal to evade service," Dempsey said.

SHERWOOD MAGEE SIGNS UP WITH COLUMBUS

Columbus, O., Jan. 27.—Sherwood Magee, formerly of the Phillies, Braves and Cubs, signed a contract to play the initial sack for the Columbus American Association team this year. Clarence Rowland gave him an unconditional release several days ago.

Arlington Elects Hardy

Charles L. Hardy of the Arlington High School Junior was elected football captain at the banquet in the Arlington Boat Club tendered the football team, champions of the Mystic Valley Interscholastic League by the High School Letter Men's Association to the players by Principal Carl D. Burt as toastmaster. Addresses were made by Captain Billy Murray of the Harvard eleven, Walter S. Langford and Dr. William T. McGarrity, the coach.

Game for St Marks

Tuesday night St. Mark's Catholic Club sextette will play the Stoughton Catholic Club at the Stoughton court. A large delegation from the club will go with the team.

Championship Bowling

Draw at Lynn

EAGAN TO MEET ROBINSON AT TRIPLE A

By JACK CONWAY.

Joe Eagan, Dorchester middleweight, and George Robinson of Cambridge will battle for the right to meet Middleweight Champion Mike O'Dowd when they clash in a twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Grand Opera House tonight.

Paddy Mullins, manager of O'Dowd, has notified Matchmaker McLean of the Armory Club that he will sign the St. Paul marvel for a tussle with the winner of the scrap this week. O'Dowd does not think a whole lot of the boxers hereabouts and believes he can dispose of them just as easily as he walloped Stockyards Tommy Murphy.

Eagan in particular does not agree with O'Dowd. He points to the fact that he won a decision over O'Dowd before the latter grabbed the title.

"I'll admit that O'Dowd is a wonderful fighter," declared Eagan today. "There is no denying, however, that the champion is about the oldest boxer in the world to hit. He is wide open when he is in the ring. He hasn't any defence and rushes at an opponent swinging both arms.

"A left hand will stop O'Dowd's rushes every time. This is the blow which enabled me to beat him the last time we met. I don't think O'Dowd is any better fighter today than he was at that time, while I have improved a great deal."

Robinson is also anxious to get a match with O'Dowd as is about every other middleweight in the land, of the brave. A championship title is worth several hundred thousand dollars in the way of coin these days, and nobody is going to pass up a chance to grab such a fortune in these hectic times.

The former meetings between Eagan and Robinson have been filled with spirited moments. In their last, which Eagan won in a decision, Previous to that encounter Robinson had left-handed his way to victory over the Dorchester middleweight.

Burt Jones of Revere will have Kid Lewis of Lawrence as an opponent in the semi-final of eight rounds. Jones has been doing some boxing lately. Last week he beat K. O. Charley Elkins and K. O. Charley Brennen. Both of these lads made quite a reputation in bouts in the Merrimac valley and Jones is to make things interesting for Jones.

Young Stone of Dorchester and Jackie Clancy of South Boston, heavyweights, will have the real grudge fight in one of the six-round preliminaries. Al Lane of South Boston and Mickey Donovan of Brockton will also box six frames.

The winner of the twelve-round bout between K. O. Muggsy and Tommy Grogan, who was signed by the Suffolk A. A. tomorrow night, will receive a handsome present. Already Kid Green and Johnny Morris have let it be known that they would like to mingle with the winner.

Green was one of the few American fighters who cared to take a chance with Jack Dempsey, which Uncle Sam was one of the principals. He is a rugged fighter and would be able to do things interesting for either Muggsy or Dorsey. As for Grogan, he was one of the T. D. champions. Nuf ced.

Dorsey is due to arrive in Boston today. He has promised to be in tussle by working out with Louis Bogash at Bridgeport.

Joe Eagan of Roxbury will receive an opportunity to prove his worth as a fighter when he opposes Billy Wood of Worcester in the semi-final of eight rounds.

The complete card for the Commercial A. C.'s show Friday night followed: Young Jack Dempsey vs. Ray Trembell, South End, six rounds; Tommy Nee, South Boston, vs. Frankie Brophy, Lawrence, six rounds; Willie Green, South Boston, vs. Gerard Girard, Lawrence; K. O. Muggsy East Boston, vs. Johnny Mc-Menimin, East Cambridge, twelve rounds.

TREMBLY-McTAGUE BOUT DECLARED "NO CONTEST"

Eddie Trembly of Bridgeport and Mike McTague of New York waved boxing gloves through the six-rounder in the Commonwealth Club for eight and a fraction rounds, and then Referee Phil Powers declared the bout "no contest."

The preliminaries were full of torrid scrapping. Harry Lewis dropped Joe O'Brien in the second stanza of the curtain raiser, and Joe Chipman stopped Kid McFarland in the fifth chapter of their bout. Scotty Weiss and Johnny Martin went eight hard rounds in the semi-final, the former getting the verdict by a shade.

GENE TUNNEY KAYOS JIM MONAHAN IN FIRST ROUND

Demers Stops Crosby

This Day in History—Jan. 27, 1920

THIS is the anniversary of the announcement of Aaron Burr's conspiracy to Congress in 1807. Burr was tried on charges of treason, but released, and lived, harassed by poverty, to the age of eighty. Burr's killing of Alexander Hamilton in a duel was never forgiven by Americans.

A Titicaca Grebe

A STRANGE grebe that lives along the shores of Lake Titicaca furnishes an admirable lesson in the effects of disuse. It is large, but its wings, through disuse, have become too small to raise it. They are no longer than those of a swallow. The bird's best efforts on the surface bring it only to a half-sitting position.

THE CINEMA MURDER

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

A Thrilling Mystery Film Serial of Love and Poverty With the Scene Laid in London and New York

"The Cinema Murder" in motion pictures, with Miss Marion Davies as the charming heroine, a Cosmopolitan production, is being shown this week at the Lancaster and Franklin Park Theatres in Boston and at theatres in several surrounding cities. Screened under direction of George D. Baker. Presented by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as a Paramount-Artcraft Picture.

"NO!" she replied grudgingly. "I'll have what I've earned, when I've earned it."

He sipped his claret and studied her meditatively.

"You're not much of a pal, are you?"

"Pal!" she jeered. "Look at you—Merton Ware, the great dramatist, and me—a shabby, ugly, bad-tempered, indifferent typewriter. Bad-tempered," she repeated. "Yes, I am that. I didn't start out to be. I just haven't had any luck."

"It will all come some day," he assured her cheerfully.

"I think if you'd stayed different," she went on thoughtfully, "if you hadn't slipped away into the clouds . . . shows what a selfish little beast I am! Can't imagine why you bother about me."

"Shall I tell you why, really?" he asked. "Because you saved me—I don't know what from. The night we went out I was suffering from a loneliness which was the worst torture I have ever felt. It was there in my throat and dragging down my heart, and I just felt as though any way of ending it all would be a joy. All these millions of hard-faced people, intent on their own prosperity or their own petty troubles, goaded me, I think, into a sort of silent fury. Just that one night I craved like a madman for a single human being to talk to—well, I shall never forget it, Martha."

"Miss Grimes!" she interrupted under her breath.

He laughed.

"That doesn't really matter, does it?" he asked. "You've never been afraid that I should want to make love to you, have you?"

She glanced round into the mirror by their side, looked at her wan face, the shabby little hat, the none too tidily arranged hair which drooped over her ears; down at her shapeless jacket, her pathetic skirt, the shoes which were in open rebellion. Then she laughed, curiously enough without any note of bitterness.

"Seems queer, doesn't it, even to think of such a thing! I've been up against it pretty hard, though. A man who gives a meal to a girl, even if she is as plain as I am, generally seems to think he's bought her, in this city. Even the men who are earning money don't give much for nothing. But you are different," she admitted. "I'll be fair about it—you're different."

"You'll be waiting for the work at nine o'clock tomorrow morning?" he asked, as indifferently as possible.

"I will," she promised.

He leaned back and told her little anecdotes about the playwright that had happened to him during the last few weeks, speaking often of Elizabeth Dalstan. By degrees the nervous unrest seemed to pass away from her. When they had finished their meal and drunk their coffee, she was almost herself. She smoked a cigarette and even accepted the box which he thrust into her hand. When he had paid the bill, she rose a little abruptly.

"Well," she said, "you've had your way, and a kind, nice way it was. Now I'll have mine. I don't want any politeness. When we leave this place I am going to walk home, and I'm going to walk home alone."

"That's lucky," he replied, "because I have to be at the theatre in ten minutes to meet a cinema man. Button up your coat and have a good night's sleep."

They left the place together. She turned away with a farewell nod and walked rapidly eastwards. He watched her cross the road. A poor little waif, she seemed, except that something had gone from her face which had almost terrified him. She carried herself, he fancied, with more buoyancy, with infinitely more confidence, and he drew a sigh of relief as he called for a taxi.

CHAPTER IV.

"You poor dear!" she exclaimed. "How many times a day did you have to do this?"

"I didn't go out very often," he reminded her, "and it wasn't every day that the lift was out of order. It's only one more flight."

She looked up the stairs, sighed, and raised her smart gray tailor-made skirt a little higher over her shoes.

"Well," she announced heroically, "lead on. If they would sometimes dust these steps—but, after all, it doesn't matter to you now, does it? Fancy that poor girl, though."

He smiled a little grimly.

"A few flights of stairs aren't the worst things she has had to face, I'm afraid," he said.

"I am rather terrified of her," Elizabeth confided, supporting herself by her companion's shoulder. "I think I know that ultra-independent type. Kick me if I put my foot in it. Is this the door?"

Philip nodded and knocked swiftly. There was a sharp "Come in!"

"Put the key down, please," the figure at the typewriter said, as they entered.

"Miss Grimes," he said. "I have brought Miss Dalstan in to see you. She wants—"

He paused. Something in the stony expression of the girl who had risen to her feet and stood now facing them, her ashen paleness unrelieved by any note of color, her hands hanging in front of her patched and shabby frock, seemed to check the words upon his lips. Her voice was low but not soft. It seemed to create at once an atmosphere of acute constraint.

"What do you want?" she demanded.

"I hope you don't mind—I am so anxious that you should do some work for me," Elizabeth explained. "When Mr. Ware first brought me in his play, I noticed how nicely it was typewritten. You must have been glad to find it turn out such a success."

Dislikes Visitors

"I take no interest in my work when once it is typed," Martha Grimes declared, "and I am very sorry but I do not like to receive visitors. I am very busy. Mr. Ware knows quite well that I like to be left alone."

Elizabeth smiled at her delightfully.

"But it isn't always good for us, is it," she reminded her, "to live exactly as we would like, or to have our own way in all things?"

There was a moment's rather queer silence. Martha Grimes seemed to be intent upon studying the appearances of her visitor, the very beautiful woman fashioned nearly every one in New York, perhaps at that moment America's most popular actress. Her eyes seemed to dwell upon the little strands of fair hair that escaped from beneath her smart but simple hat, to take in the slightly depressing lift of the eyebrows, the very attractive, half-appealing smile, the soft gray tailor-made gown with the bunch of violets in her waistband. Elizabeth was as quietly dressed as it was possible for her to be, but her appearance nevertheless brought a note of some other world into the shabby little apartment.

"It's the only thing I ask of life," Martha said, "the only thing I get. I want to be left alone, and I will be left alone. If there is any more work, I will do it. If there isn't, I can find some somewhere else. But visitors I don't want and won't have."

Elizabeth was adorably patient. She surreptitiously drew towards her a cane chair, a doubtful-looking article of furniture upon which she seated herself slowly and with great care.

"Well," she continued, with unabated pleasantness, "that is reasonable as far as it goes, only we didn't quite understand, and it is such a climb up here, isn't it? I came to talk about some work, but I must get my breath first."

"Miss Dalstan thought, perhaps," Philip intervened diffidently, "that you might consider accepting a post at the theatre. They always keep two stenographers there, and one of them fills up her time by private work, generally work for some one connected with the theatre. In your case you could, of course, go on with mine, only when I hadn't enough for you, and of course I can't compose as fast as you can type, there would be something else, and the salary would be regular."

"I should like a regular post," the girl admitted sullenly. "So would any one who's out of work, of course."

Good Job

"The salary," Elizabeth explained, "is twenty-five dollars a week. The hours are nine to six. You have quite a comfortable room there, but when you have private work connected with the theatre you can bring it home if you wish. Mr. Ware tells me that you work very quickly. You will finish all that you have for him today, won't you?"

"I shall have it finished in half an hour."

"Then will you be at the New York Theatre tomorrow morning at nine o'clock, Elizabeth suggested. "There are some parts to be copied. It will be very nice indeed if you like the work, and I think you will."

The girl stood there, irresolute. It was obvious that she was trying to bring herself to utter some form of thanks. There was a loud knock at the door, which was opened without waiting for any reply. The janitor stood there with a small key in his hand, which he threw down upon a table.

"Key of number two hundred, miss," he said. "Let me have it back again tonight."

He closed the door and departed.

As a Woman Thinketh

By HELEN ROWLAND

What Are You Getting Out of Life?

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

I KNOW an actress

Who has worked, and struggled and toiled, day and night, for twenty years——

Worked in illness and health, in loneliness and sorrow, and even in the shadow of death.

And out of it all she has wrung from life

I know a woman writer, who has slaved and drudged at her desk for twenty years,

Who has fought and hoped, and suffered, and despaired—and sometimes starved——

And yet has won!

And out of it all she has reaped the satisfying joy of doing the work she loved to do, the friendship and affection of many stimulating, radiant people—of poets and painters and statesmen; a satisfying financial independence, a country home, a motor-car, the quiet devotion of a world full of readers, and a vast contentment with life!

And yet neither of these is the hardest-worked woman I know.

I know a little woman who has fought her way up the social ladder, round by round, who has worked like a stoker in the social engine morning, noon and night—eighteen hours a day—for twenty years; who has trodden out every round of the "squirrel cage" day after day—shops, dressmakers, milliners, hen luncheons, bridges, teas and dull, deadly dinner parties;

Who has suffered the purgatory of eternal boredom, endured innumerable snubs and been torn with the panes of rage, jealousy and disappointment; who has sacrificed her health, her youth, her looks, her old friends and her poor, patient husband, on the altar of her ambition!

And out of it all she has managed to get

A bad case of chronic dyspepsia,

And about fourteen thousand CUPS OF WEAK TEA!

And sometimes, after I have been to a particularly stupid party, and have come home feeling as frazzled and weary as the man who killed himself making a million, I am tempted to ask, as HE did with his last breath,

"Say, Doc, what's it all ABOUT, anyway?"

Because, after all, the great problem of life consists in making what you GET OUT of it balance with what you PUT INTO it!

And, on that theory, the life of the Social Climber

Another Thought

Presently another thought came to Shirley. She knew Bryce Cardigan was far from being indifferent to her; she had given him his opportunity to be friendly with her again, and he had chosen to ignore her timorously against his will. For weeks Shirley had pondered this mysterious action, and now she thought she caught a glimpse of the reason underlying it all. In Sequoia, Bryce Cardigan was regarded as heir to the throne of Humbolt's first timber-king, but Shirley knew that as a timber-king, Bryce Cardigan bade fair to wear a tinsel crown. Was it this knowledge that had led him to avoid her?

"I wonder," she mused. "He's proud. Perhaps the realization that he will soon be penniless and shorn of his high estate has made him chary of acquiring new friends in his own circle. Perhaps if he were secure in his business affairs —Ah, yes! Poor boy! He was desperate for fifty thousand dollars!" Her heart swelled. "Oh, Bryce, Bryce," she murmured. "I think I'm beginning to understand some of your fury in action at the first."

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

"SHE'S an ideal hostess. She leaves us alone," said Val lazily. Then her voice took on a provocative note. "But unless some one proves very amusing I shall feel piqued and say she took the nicest of our men."

"What do you want to do?" begged Jim defensively, but Lane Cosby rumbled in on the conversation as if Jim hadn't spoken. He spoke straight to Val.

"She leaves us alone," he repeated. "That's good—for a time I was afraid she wouldn't."

Again I sensed that mysterious something that seemed almost like fear.

"Isn't it time for a nap?" asked Val, yawning elaborately, but with keen, wide-awake eyes fixed on her husband. Suppose we go in for a rest Cosby. If you'll be here in an hour or so I'll give you tea, Jimmie. And I suppose the energetic folks will — investigate the pine woods and Lover's Leap."

"That's us, Donna Anna," said Tom as Val swept Cosby away in her wake. "Mrs. Cosby is thinking of everyone—even taking the extra man off and putting him to sleep. Want us to stay with you until she gets back, Jimmie?"

"No. Run along," said Jim, "I was planning to show Anne the old Harrison place, but we haven't time to get there and back in an hour. You point it out to her, Tommie; there's a good fellow."

Tom Mason laid his hand on my elbow and piloted me along as serenely as if I hadn't stood in his office only a fortnight before and told him that he was an utter cad and that I refused to have anything to do with him again outside of business. So what was there for me to do?

It was Jim who was ordering me on to view his old home under Tom Mason's guidance. And Jim was waiting under the trees for Valerie Cosby to come back from questioning the cook and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—Advertisement.

The Valley of the Giants

By Peter B. Kyne

IN the three stock subjects of the admirable sex—man, dress, and the lily that fouls a heel to—man readily holds the ascendancy, and by degrees Moira—discovering that Shirley, having all the dresses she required (several dozen more, in fact) and being neither subnormal mentally nor fragile physically, gave the last two topics scant attention—formed the habit of expatiating at great length on the latter. Moira described Bryce in minute detail and related to her eager auditor little unconscious daily acts of kindness, thoughtfulness, or humor performed by Bryce with devotion to his father, his idealistic attitude toward the Cardigan employes, his ability, his ingenuity, the wonderful care he bestowed upon his finger-nails, his marvellous taste in neckwear, the boyishness of his lighter and the mannishness of his serious moments.

And presently, little by little, Shirley's resentment against him faded, and in her heart was born a great wistfulness bred of the hope that some day she would meet Bryce Cardigan on the street and that he would pause, lift his hat, smile at her his compelling smile and, forthwith proceed to bully her into being friendly and forgiving —browbeat her into admitting her chance of heart and glorying in it.

Last Trump

To this remarkable state of mind had Shirley Sumner attained at the time old John Cardigan, heading his last little trump in a vain hope that it would enable him to take the odd trick in the bugo game he had played for fifty years, decided to sell his Valley of the Giants.

Shortly after joining her uncle in Sequoia, Shirley had learned from the Colonel the history of old man Cardigan and his Valley of the Giants, or, as the townspeople called it, Cardigan's Redwoods. Therefore she was familiar with its importance to the assets of the Laguna Grande Lumber Company, since, while that quarter section remained the property of John Cardigan 2,500 acres of splendid timber owned by the former were rendered inaccessible. Her uncle had explained to her that ultimately this would mean the tying up of some $1,000,000, and inasmuch as the Colonel never figured less than 5 per cent. return on anything, he was in this instance setting a cut loss of $50,000 for each year obstinate old John Cardigan persisted in retaining that quarter section.

"I'd cheerfully give him a hundred thousand for that miserable little dab of timber and let him keep a couple of acres surrounding his wife's grave if the old fool would only listen to reason," the Colonel had complained bitterly to her. "I've offered him that price a score of times, and he tells me blandly the property is not for sale. Well, he who laughs last laughs best, and if I can't get that quarter section by hook or crook ten times what I'm worth in the open market I'll get it some other way, if it costs me a million."

"How?" Shirley had queried at the time.

"Never mind, my dear," he had answered darkly. "You wouldn't understand the procedure if I told you. I'll have to run all around Robin Hood's barn and put up a deal of money, one way or another, but in the end I'll get it back with interest—and Cardigan's Redwoods. The old man can't last forever, and what with his foul methods of doing business, he's about broke, anyhow. I expect to do business with his executor or his receiver within a year."

Shirley, as explained in a preceding chapter, had been present the night John Cardigan, desperate and brought to bay at last, had telephoned Penniwell to call at the latter's home, accepting Pennington's last offer for the Valley of Giants. The cruel triumph on the Colonel's handsome face as he curtly rebuffed old Cardigan had been too apparent for the girl to mistake.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual phlegm and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup in a few minutes, put Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake well a few times. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way you get a full pint—enough—a family of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers —Meat forms uric acid.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to soak relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get from any druggist four ounces of Jad Salts, add one tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

FOREIGN COPPER PURCHASES FALL OFF

Sales Made in First Eleven Months of 1919 Way Below Previous Year

Foreign buying of copper last year was less than generally realized, as exports for the first eleven months totalled but 162,299,259 pounds, compared with 841,858,805 and 444,062,000 in the corresponding periods of 1918 and 1917 respectively. Producers found their best market in this country, it being estimated that 85 per cent. of November and December sales, when the metal ranked with the most active, were to domestic consumers.

But a great foreign demand must be felt soon. At the end of 1919 foreign holding were small, being estimated at 2,000,000 pounds for England, 4,000,000 pounds for France and 6,000,000 for Italy. Germany is practically without supply and will be a big buyer eventually.

Cotton Led Export List

Cotton led the list of American exports in monetary value last year, shipments being estimated at value at from $1,215,000,000 to $1,400,000,000.

STOCKS UP ON THE BOSTON EXCHANGE

Carson Hill Is Leader in Early Trading; Market Is Dull

After an irregular start the Boston market grew strong and prices on the Stock Exchange rallied higher during the morning. Utah Copper and Superior & Boston were the most active coppers and advanced after showing losses on initial sales. Carson Hill was the early leader and advanced more than a point. There was some trading in Walworth, which moved up and down in a narrow range. On one transaction International Cotton Mills sold at its highest since listed on this exchange. Among stocks to advance a point or more were Old Dominion, Quincy, U. S. Smelting, Stewart and Arnold. The last named showed a gain of four at its highest. Fractional improvements were made by Eastern Manufacturing, Massachusetts Gas, American Telephone, Root & Van Deerwoort, North Butte and Wahlord.

Among issues to recede fractionally were Ohio Body, Swift & Co., Swift International, Nipissing, Elder and Wahlstein Watch.

The market was dull and without breadth as the trading in many stocks was

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Corn opened steady to weak with early offerings small. Prices ranged 10 lower, closing prices were: Corn—January 1.45; May 1.35 to 1.35¼; July 1.32¾ to 1.32½. Oats—May, 83¾; July, 75¼. Lard—May, 24.15.

TRADING QUIET AND WITHOUT FEATURE

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at the end of the morning, but there was enough profit taking in the second hour to reduce gains and prices at noon were slightly below to the highest level. It was a quiet market, transactions for the first hour totalling about 170,000 shares. Trading was without any distinctive feature and overnight events had no bearing upon security valuations.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent. Foreign exchange rates sagged again, demand sterling opening at the new record lowest of $3.57¼. Francs were down to 12.72 and lire to 14.82, new lows for each. German marks were quoted at .0110. Among strong specialties were American Linseed Co., American Sugar Refining, California Packing, Corn Products, National Lead, New York Air Brake, Virginia Carolina Chemical and Industrial Alcohol. They had advanced one or two points.

PRICES MOVED UPWARD.

Foreign exchange rates were irregular at the opening, but the undertone was good at the very start and the subsequent movement was upward. Some odd lot buying on investment account was a minor influence in the advance, but the main reason for gains was covering of shorts. Traders believe liquidation is over, and that all weak holders seem to have been eliminated, and the opinion obtains that the technical situation warrants an advance. The short interest is deemed overextended. Many maintain that if money rates could be lowered a big bull movement would result. But the necessity of curtailing credits is holding speculation in check. Strength of stocks displayed within several days is giving bears concern. Prices have gone up with foreign exchange rates receding and with the call rate ranging between 7 per cent. to 10 per cent. The market is still of a professional character, but there was signs of a widespread public buying of securities, and it would be made apparent on stock exchanges if given any freedom of expression. Under existing conditions only big interests can afford to play the game.

STEEL ISSUES WERE ACTIVE.

Steel, motor, oil and equipment issues were the most active during the first hour, with the first named inspiring the most interest. Crucible began with more than a point gain, but rallied and showed a gain within a few minutes. U. S. Steel began at a decline, but soon recovered. This corporation will report final quarter earnings after the market closes today, and they will be a great strike, which greatly curtailed production for weeks, is expected to make a poorer showing than is did in the third quarter. Gains were not large, but were general. Up to midmorning not a leader showed more than two points gain. Worthington Pump, American Woolen common, International Paper and several other specialties, including Remely common, were strong. Trade was devoid of any early feature. Cuban American Sugar dropped five points on one transaction. Copper improved a little. Rails remained inactive.

Industries Short of Coal

Industries in all parts of the country are suffering from fuel shortage and this is attributed more to lack of cars than to curtailed mining. The Black Diamond figure that industrial production is curtailed in some instances 5 per cent. or less. Complaint is made that the railroad administration is still holding fuel laden cars taken over during the coal strike. On a recent date 5000 cars were lying in the Chicago district and 700 were held at Toledo. Efforts to get this coal delivered and cars released are said to have failed.

Chain Store Prosperity

Last year was the most prosperous ever known for chain stores. All systems report high record sale totals. Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea did a 1919 business exceeding $150,000,000, according to estimates, while Woolworth sales amounted to $119,491,932. United Cigar Stores total approximated $82,000,000. Great Atlantic operated 3928 stores, Woolworth 1016 and United Cigar Stores number 1350.

Steel Prices Advanced

Independent steel manufacturers have restored the price schedule existing a year ago and which was cut late in March last at the instance of a government board. The result is an advance of about $7 a ton on the average. Higher prices were made imperative, manufacturers say, by increased production costs and the prospect of an advance in freight rates on ore and fuel.

Iron Ore Output Decreased

Owing to steel and coal strikes, which caused suspension of blast furnaces for weeks, demand for iron ore slackened somewhat last year and 1919 production decreased about 15 per cent. to a total of 49,466,000 gross tons.

DID BOLSHEVISM CRIPPLE POWHATAN? BAKER ASKED

Washington, Jan. 27.—Secretary of War Baker was asked to inform the House whether Bolshevism is responsible for the disabling of the iron-port Powhatan recently" in a resolution presented by Representative Britten of Illinois. Britten also asked the Secretary of War to make a report on the conditions of the transport service generally.

Silver Adds to Lake Revenue

The Lake Superior copper mining region is benefiting greatly by the high price for silver. Calumet and Hecla consumed eighty-eight bars weighing 6000 pounds to a United States mint in one shipment last week. The metal was valued at $110,000 and is high record for one shipment.

Chartered in Massachusetts

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts granted charters to twenty-nine corporations last week and their capitalization aggregated $9,550,000.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Jan. 27.—The cotton market opened steady, but 12 to 35 points lower. Interest and Wall Street were the principal sellers, being influenced by weakness in foreign exchange and a falling off in demand for spot cotton. Liverpool reported a fair trade and from scattered local shorts. Buying was very active after the opening after the call were irregular, with the following prices were March, 35.80; May, 33.95; July, 32.12; October, 29.70; December, 29.25.

Town and City Loans

Cambridge, Mass., has sold to S. N. Bond & Co. at 3.25 per cent. premium a temporary loan of $50,000, maturing Nov. 3, 1920.

Malden, Mass., will receive proposals until 7:30 p. m. February 3, 1920, for purchase of $50,000 issue of Malden public notes in anticipation of taxes and payable November 1, 1920.

Town of Framingham will receive bids until 10 a. m. February 3, 1920, for purchase of $100,000 issue of two temporary loans of $50,000 each, the authorization for serial loans issues of $220,000, for construction of two school houses. Loan will mature June 30, 1920.

Who's Who ON BOSTON'S NEW POLICE FORCE

JOHN J. FLAHERTY.

John J. Flaherty represents law and order during the day in the North Station section. His route takes in the following streets: Green, Staniford, Leverett, Causeway, Merrimac and Norman. In the old days before the war he was employed as a machinist at the Gray & Davis plant and from 1917 until the early part of last year he was an inspector of munitions for the government. Not alone is Flaherty's fame confined to Boston, for he is well known among baseball fans in New York, where he played the position of catcher in the Interboro City League for three successful years. He is also from East Boston, where he now makes his home. He is 25 years of age and as yet unmarried.

Whiskey Blows Cork Through Wall of Office

Greenburg, Pa., Jan. 27.—If Uncle Sam had but known of the power in bottled whiskey, he might have saved millions by substituting it for TNT and other high explosives in the war.

A bottle of bootleg liquor brought to the district attorney's office developed such a kick that it shot its cork through the astonished prosecutor's office wall.

FEW ARRESTS, CLINTON MAY CUT POLICE FORCE

Clinton, Jan. 27.—The municipal finance commission has ordered chief of Police John F. McGee to appear before it this evening for a conference relative to reducing the number of officers. The department includes a chief and eight officers and the cost of maintenance is $15,000. It is believed that the town can get along with at least three fewer officers. Since January 1 there have been but two arrests.

WILL SELL OPERATIVES STOCK IN SILK MILL

Putnam, Ct., Jan. 27.—Hundreds of employes of the Hammond & Knowlton silk mills at Allentown and New London have been notified that the company is to increase its capital stock $1,000,000 and that the operatives will be the first to whom the stock will be sold.

WORKINGMEN: Your neighbor may know all about New Safety Paper. Ask him. About 600 skilled workmen do know about it and are owners in the business. If you want to earn 300% on a small investment, better look us up. Then you will be one of us. Investigation, in this enterprise, carries conviction. HUNDREDS OF BANKS endorse the idea. Buy now and make 5 for 1 on your investment. Never mind what people say. Once Calumet & Hecla was a "wild-cat." Once Bell Telephone was a "krazy-kat." Once Henry Ford was "bug-house." Once King C. Gillette was a visionary. Did you get into any of these? No! Well, here's another opportunity knocking at your bean. You can call it a speculation, a gamble or anything you please. We call it a business.

You can welcome it and make 300% and up or play the 5% game and never be any better off than you are now. It's up to you.

Only a few more shares left at 86c. Call and see us and be shown.

NORMAL INCOME TAX RATES FOR 1919 LOWER

The man who pays an income tax this year has several reasons for which to be thankful. First, that his income for 1919 was sufficient to place it within the taxable list; second, the normal rates are lower than for 1918; and third, that the current revenue act is more liberal in its provisions than preceding acts.

Prior to 1916 a distinction was made between only two classes of taxpayers. A man was either married or single, and was taxed accordingly. The act of September 8, 1916, extended the exemption privileges in one respect. Recognition was taken of the fact that many unmarried persons, in the maintenance of a household, assume the same responsibilities as a married man.

Under the 1919 act the exemptions allowed a married person were extended to include the "head of a family."

ADDITIONAL EXEMPTION.

Still another distinction was drawn by the revenue act of 1917. An additional allowance of $200 was made for each child dependent upon its parent, provided such child was under 18 years of age or mentally or physically defective.

The revenue act of 1918 extended further the exemption privileges. The additional $200 allowance now applies to each person (other than husband or wife) dependent upon the taxpayer, if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support.

Under the 1913 act deductions for losses sustained outside of the taxpayers' regular business were not allowed. The act of 1916 allowed such losses to the extent of gains in similar transactions. The 1918 act provides for the deduction of all losses "if incurred in any transaction not entered into for profit, though not connected with trade or business."

FORMS NOW AVAILABLE.

The normal rate of tax for 1919 is 4 per cent. on the first $4,000 or net income and 8 per cent. on net income above that amount. As in 1918, the tax may be paid in full or in four installments, the first of which must accompany the filing of the return on or before March 15, the second on or before June 15, the third on or before September 15, and the fourth on or before December 15.

Forms for making returns may now be obtained at the offices of collectors of internal revenue, postoffices and banks. If the taxpayer's net income for 1919 was $5,000 or less, he should ask for Form 1040—A. If it was more than $5,000, he should ask for Form 1040.

Broken Pledges, Violated Ideals Are Bringing Just Punishment to the Recreants at Versailles

Saturday afternoon the newspapers generally printed the following dispatch, and the New York Times emphasized its importance by putting it in a box at top of column on its first page Sunday morning. The dispatch reads:

Lloyd George Said to Predict His Fall Within Six Months

Paris, Jan. 24.—In conversation with a member of the Chamber of Deputies, Premier Lloyd George is said in a newspaper article published here to have expressed an opinion that the "Peace Treaty was hard luck for any one having had a hand in it."

"Yes," the Deputy is quoted as replying, "Premier Orlando is out of office, Premier Clemenceau is again in private life, and President Wilson has met with reverses in Washington. Only you have been spared."

"Yes, and in less than six months it will be my turn," is the reply attributed to the British leader.

It is customary for people to apply the term "hard luck" to the misfortunes which occur as the result of their unwise actions or bad judgment.

There is no LUCK about the disastrous occurrences which have befallen Premier Orlando, Premier Clemenceau and the Wilson Administration, and which Premier Lloyd George is reported to have said will soon overtake him.

These political disasters are not "hard luck." They are the natural and inevitable consequences of the connection of these leaders of nations with the formation of a treaty which violated every pledge that these leaders had made to their peoples, and which outraged every ideal that these nations believed they were fighting for in the late great war.

President Wilson, Premier Orlando, Premier Clemenceau and Premier Lloyd George all preached to their peoples that the war was a crusade for democracy, for liberty, for the self-determination of nations and the independence of peoples; that it was a crusade against imperialism and militarism.

The people believed these preachments, consecrated themselves to these ideals, spent their blood in rivers and laid down their lives to make these ideals realities, to destroy the imperialism that makes for conquest, to wipe out once and for all the militarism which breaks the backs of a burdened people with heavy taxation and bares their breasts to the bloody sword of war.

The nations which had the inspiration of these high ideals won the war.

Then the various leaders of these nations, who had preached democracy and liberty and the independence of peoples, and the self-determination of nations, who had denounced imperialism and militarism and the greed of conquest and the injustice of domination by force of arms, assembled at Paris and devised a treaty and a covenant of nations which repudiated every pledge they had made and violated every preachment they had uttered.

They created a covenant which transferred militarism and imperialism from the people they had fought to the people they had led;

Which forgot liberty, denied democracy, refused self-determination to peoples, and proceeded to parcel out the world and dominate the world by the very force of arms which they had hypocritically decried;

Which made war upon their one-time ally Russia, mainly because it was a democracy, and refused even to this, their own, associate in the war the independence of thought and action which they had promised to all the world;

Which maintained armies at cruel cost to their own people in order that other peoples might be kept in cruel subjection;

Which necessitated the expenditure of vast sums for military and naval establishments when their peoples were already taxed to the verge of destitution and the nations strained to the point of bankruptcy.

It is possible that Premier Orlando and Premier Clemenceau and Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson did not believe in the ideals which they preached, although it is to be hoped they did believe in them.

But, whether they believed in them or not, it is certain that THE PEOPLE believe in those ideals, and, having fought for them, and having shed their blood for them, and having won the victory for them, are determined TO HAVE THEM.

It is not "hard luck," therefore, that the peoples of the various victorious nations, being determined actually to possess the objects for which they fought, should be equally determined to get rid of any man and every man who stands in the way of the realization of those objects and who has been connected with the creation of a treaty and a League of Nations which, instead of granting them the liberty and the democracy, the independence and self-determination which they sought to secure, endeavors to fasten upon the peoples the militarism and the imperialism which they fought to destroy.

Lloyd George is probably right in his belief that he will be next to suffer from the indignation of the people.

And in all human probability every man associated with the creation of that treaty and that covenant of nations, and with the attempt to force it and fasten it upon the free peoples which they represent, will be made to pay the penalty for his treason to the cause for which the people fought.

Senators of the United States of America: There is much for you to think about in Lloyd George's remarks.

There is much for you to profit by in the bitter experiences of these leaders of the nations.

It will be a dull Senator who cannot read the writing on the wall after Lloyd George has prophetically translated it for him.

It will be an obstinate Senator who will now attempt to support this treaty, which has caused the downfall of so many great leaders and which will surely involve others equally in the general ruin who support its unjust and oppressive provisions.

"Hard luck" is a poor excuse for lack of judgment, lack of discernment, lack of vision.

If the Senators who support this iniquitous treaty, this treaty so repulsive to the people, so violative of all the ideals for which the people fought, shall find themselves out of office at the end of their terms, they should not attribute their misfortunes to "hard luck," but to their failure to profit by the plain experiences of others and their unwillingness to conform to the will of their masters, the people.

SONNETS OF A RUSH HOUR

By S. E. KISER

I.

THEY jam me in the surging, maddened throng,
I'm flattened like a sardine that is canned;
Upon my purse I feel a stranger's hand,
And wish to chide the sinner for his wrong,
But no one cares, and I am rushed along!
At last I find a place in which to stand,
Though lacking room to let my chest expand—
Thank God that I'm a man, and well and strong.

In front there stands a woman, poorly clad;
My nose is pressed against her knot of hair,
A thing that makes me just a little sad;
I wonder why men in the open air
Forget sometimes to be serene and glad?

II.

I WRIGGLE from a cul de sac and gain
The pleasure of a deep, full breath once more;
Then someone thinks my foot must be the floor,
And I am filled with sharp and sudden pain;
I hear the pretty little girl complain;
Her hair is down, she's lost the hat she wore
And all the cheer she seemed to have before—
I'll bet she builds no castles now in Spain!

AN elbow that is mighty sharp is jabbed
Against my diaphragm and drawn away;
My arm by one who knows me not is grabbed;
She grumbles: "Quit your nudgin' me, you jay!"
I bump a woman's knee, and then am stabbed;
"A hatpin's useful yet," I hear her say.

P. S.—And they want us to pay more for it!

WHY RAISE THE BOYS?

The French professor who says 100,000,000 men will be killed in the next war may be right, but he is offering a mighty poor argument in favor of large families.

SOME DAY.
AN ELEVATOR boy.
IS GOING to smile at me.
AND SAY: "Good morning."
AND I'M going to reach out.
AND PUT my arms around him.
AND DRAW him to me.
AND ASK him his name.
AND GET it.
AND SEND it to Joe Kathrens.
AND HAVE Joe.
MAKE HIM a member.
OF THE Sunshine Club.
AND GIVE him a medal.
WITH HIS name on it.
AND THE words.
"AN ELEVATOR man.
WHO SMILED."
AND HE'LL wear it.
AND ELEVATOR men.
IN OTHER buildings.
WILL HEAR about it.
AND YOU'LL come down town.
IN THE morning.
WITH A grouch.
ABOUT THE coffee.
OR THE eggs.
OR WHATEVER it was.
AND THE elevator man.
WILL SMILE.
AND RIGHT away.
YOU'LL BE ashamed.
AND ANSWER him.
AND SMILE.
AND GO into the office.
AND SMILE.
AND SAY "Good morning."
TO ALL the help.
AND THEY'LL smile.
AND ANSWER you.

AND YOU'LL call your wife.
ON THE phone.
AND SAY.
"IS THAT you, dear?"
AND SHE'LL say.
"YES, JOHN.
"WHAT'S THE matter, dear?"
AND YOU'LL say.
"I'M SORRY.
"ABOUT WHAT I said.
"ABOUT THE coffee."
AND SHE'LL say.
"YOU FOOLISH boy.
"DON'T WORRY about that.
"AND COME home early."
AND SHE'LL hang up the phone.
AND SMILE.
AND GO out to the kitchen.
LOOKING FOR something.
THAT YOU'D like for dinner.
AND THE maid will smile.
AND WHEN the iceman comes.
SHE'LL SAY "Good morning."
AND HE'LL smile.
AND GO to the neighbors.
AND THEY'LL smile.
AND WOULDN'T it be fine.
TO BE an elevator man.
AND MAKE everybody smile.

I THANK you.

No Whiskey, Much Sleep
South Pole Wealth
Not a Rich World
Not a Poor World

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920.

To avoid influenza.

Don't take drugs, especially don't take whiskey or strong drink in any form. Doctors who think lack of whiskey causes death by influenza should read the late Dr. Osler's great medical work.

Drink plenty of water with a little orange or lemon juice, or a lump of sugar in it.

Sleep long hours, not late in the morning, but early the night before, remembering that Shakespeare was right, sleep does "Knit up the raveled sleeve of care," and also the ravelled, tired, worn tissues of the body.

Get plenty of fresh air. The iron in your blood passing through the lungs, picks up the oxygen and takes it to the millions of living breathing, eating, drinking and digesting cells of which your body is composed.

Keep fingers from your mouth. Turn pages of books and newspapers without wetting your finger tips.

In an epidemic of influenza, germs of the disease are on the fingers of all that travel in street cars or railroad trains.

To the South Pole by flying machine is the program. An English expedition, authorized to spend a million dollars, will find out what is worth taking away down there.

British diamond miners now working in African tropics may find themselves later working under the southern cross in the Antarctic. Where the South Pole is now the tropics once were. Our earth goes around the sun like a roasting chicken on a spit. Its assorted motions, some of them lasting thousands of years, keep all parts of the planet throughly and evenly cooked during its millions of years of life.

Much wealth was stored underground at either pole, when that region was where the Equator is now.

A Nobel prize, forty thousand dollars, goes to Professor Fischer of Germany. He invented poison gas used in war. Professor Fischer earned the prize by his service in teaching men to obtain nitrogen from the atmosphere. But Fischer did invent poison gas and there is much indignation outside of Germany, that he should get that Nobel prize. But Nobel's ghost could not reasonably object.

For Nobel invented dynamite and the smokeless powder, which enables you to kill in safety. The inventor of dynamite and smokeless powder, useful in war, could hardly object to the inventor of poison gas, which is only carrying the killing process one step further.

Much paper money in the world, kind friends. During the war, nations added five hundred per cent. to the amount of paper money that existed before the war began.

And during the year just ended, after the armistice was signed, the nations, printed over eleven thousand million dollars in paper money, making forty eight thousand million dollars' worth of paper money floating about the earth, not including thirty-four thousand million dollars of paper rubles that busy Bolshevism has struck off in the last two years.

The nations have increased debts as rapidly, in proportion, as paper money. Countries that used to owe forty thousand million dollars, now owe two hundred and sixty thousand million dollars.

Big figures, but after all, the world with its thousands of millions of papers and hundreds of thousands of millions of debts, is not rich and not very poor. Real value is the human being.

If all paper money was divided among the earth's fifteen hundred million inhabitants, they would have less than $40 apiece. Fifty years ago, the well-made black slave was worth a thousand dollars. The world's debts, two hundred and sixty thousand millions, amount to less than $180 for each inhabitant of the earth.

If power and industry were developed as they should be, and, if all people on earth could be put to work with [illegible] equipment, decently treated [illegible] to do their very best, the world's entire debt could be wiped out by newly-created wealth inside of three years. To do that each inhabitant would need to earn each year only $60 more than it cost him to live.

The trouble is that $60 a year, small sum to an American, means 20 cents a working day, and at least half of all the people on earth at present earn less than 20 cents a day.
